Couple Held In Attack, Admits Fake Rape Story

Chicago Engineer Says Young Woman Lured Him to Park, Then Man Beat Him

A tale of an attempted rape told police by a teen-age newlywed and his young wife last night was changed to a confession that they themselves had lured the alleged "assailant" to Fort DuPont Park to rob him.

Park Police detectives, after grilling the couple for several hours, announced last night that each had signed statements in which they admitted the rape story was false. They also admitted their victim had been lured to the park with a view to robbing him, police said.

The husband was charged with assault and attempted robbery while the wife was charged only with attempted robbery. The couple was married last May.

The couple, Paul Hockman, 19, and Phyllis, 18, of 124 C st. ne., earlier had told a tale of attempted ravishment of the girl and her heroic defense by the husband.

Drove to Park, They Said

They had asserted they drove to the park at Pennsylvania ave. and 38th st. se., shortly after Saturday midnight to cool off.

They said Hockman left his pretty wife lying on the grass while he went for a drink of water at a fountain about 80 feet away.

They reported that a white man attempted to rape Mrs. Hockman. Her husband, the story went on, heard sounds of the scuffle as he was bending over the fountain and came running back to subdue the assailant with his fists and blows from a toy pistol left in his car by a young niece earlier in the day.

Acting on information supplied by Hockman that the alleged rapist might have been badly hurt in the fight, police began a check of all hospitals.

Engineer Disputes Story

His story was totally different from the one told by the Hockmans, police reported.

The engineer told police he had struck up a chance acquaintance with Mrs. Hockman in the 1400 block of F st. nw. late Saturday night. He said they had "a few drinks" and that she suggested a romantic interlude in the cool greenery of Fort Dupont Park, according to the police.

Police said he reported they took a cab to the park and that she led him to a spot lush with shrubbery.

At this point, he said, Hockman and two soldiers leaped from ambush with Hockman wielding a

Gen. MacArthur Said Reluctant To Testify Here

Tokyo, Aug. 14 (U.P.). — Gen. Douglas MacArthur does not want to return to America and testify before Congress because the "whole thing is just a political football," according to some persons here who are in a position to know what the supreme commander is thinking.

Veteran observers here are convinced that this political football statement must originally have come from MacArthur in the presence of some associates and they are convinced that the general did not explain his position further—hence nobody close to him is willing to elaborate for the fear of being wrong.

Potato Price Support Topped $65 Million in One County

(This is the first of a series of articles on the Government's potato price-support program.)

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Presque Isle, Me., Aug. 14.—Uncle Sam poured more than 65 million dollars into this one Maine county, Aroostook, last year to hold up the price of potatoes.

One or two, maybe more, Aroostook County potato growers got Government checks of around half a million dollars apiece for their 1948 crop. A dozen or so got more than $150,000 each.

Newall Smith of Ashland, Me., and Francis Reardon of Charlestown, Mass., a wealthy Boston food broker, partners in the Maine Seed Potato Growers at Ashland, sold 99 per cent of their crop to the Government for $495,000.

The Reeds of Fort Fairfield got around $426,000. One of the Reed firms, Walter M. Reed & Sons, sold about $202,000 worth to the Government, while Reed Brothers, Inc., of which Walter M. Reed is a stockholder with his two brothers, sold $225,000 worth.

The late Harold S. Marks of Limestone (he was stricken with a fatal heart attack a few weeks ago), sold $276,000 worth of potatoes to the price support program.

Here are some other estimates:

Rudolph Blier, Van Buren, Me., got about $216,000 for 90 per cent of his crop.

Parent Brothers of Van Buren, just less than $200,000 for 70 per cent of their harvest.

Edward Edmunds, jr., operator of the farms of his late father-in-law, C. A. Powers, of Fort Fairfield, $179,000 for half his crop.

F. H. Vahlsing of Easton, $170,000 for one-third his harvest.

Fred Z. Pelletier of Fort Kent, $165,000.

New Navy Blimp Designed to Fight Schnorkel Subs

The Navy yesterday revealed work has been started on the largest nonrigid airship ever built—a giant 324-foot blimp specially designed to combat schnorkel submarines.

The airship, being built by the Goodyear Aircraft Corp., at Akron, Ohio, will have a top speed of about 75 knots, weigh 55,000 pounds and carry a useful load of more than 9000 pounds.

FBI Arrests Much-Sought 'Con' Man

Atlanta, Aug. 14 (AP).—The FBI said today one of the 10 most sought-after fugitives in the United States has been nabbed in Birmingham, Ala., posing as a cook.

Special Agent John C. Bills confirmed a report here that Birmingham G-men had picked up Dustean A. Youngs, described as one of the most fantastic confidence men of the postwar era.

Bills estimated that the firm of Farnsworth-Silversmith & Associates had obtained between 80 thousand and 100 thousand dollars in one brief stay in Atlanta.

In addition, the FBI charged, the two—Youngs and Herbert B. Silversmith—performed some startling account juggling in banks from Winston-Salem, N. C., to Oklahoma, netting additional thousands.

The FBI said that Youngs (alias Roy Farnsworth) and Silversmith posed as publishers of city directories and actually did publish directories on occasion to provide a reputable background.

Then they moved in on Atlanta, Bills continued, in late 1947. Youngs was accompanied by his wife and all three appeared tremendously prosperous.

Silversmith, the FBI related, once entered a gift shop and asked the price of some pipes after telling the clerk he was a collector. The clerk replied $100 each. The astonished clerk, the FBI went on, then received a $12,000 order for 120 pipes.

Silversmith, arrested in November, 1947, also lived in a fashionable neighborhood and drove a Cadillac—purchased on the installment plan.

On occasion both Youngs and Silversmith handed out $20 tips for negligible services, the FBI added.

Barkley Lets Crowd Down: His 'Queen' Is Granddaughter

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Vice President Alben W. Barkley took Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley, his attractive lady friend, to an airport dedication today, and pulled a sly joke on 10,000 people.

Barkley and Mrs. Hadley, the St. Louis widow around whom romance rumors have buzzed, were guests of honor at the county airport during ceremonies for renaming it Barkley Field.

The 71-year-old widower, who has denied marriage rumors, was in the process of crowning no less than seven queens at the affair when he came to the last one and spoke solemnly to the crowd.

"I was quoted as saying that I was going to crown a queen of my own some day. I couldn't say then what I had on my mind, although there was much speculation," he said.

Barkley paused dramatically, while Mrs. Hadley sat intent on the speaker's platform nearby.

"I am happy to announce that here is the little queen of my own," he said.

The dedication climaxed a gala weekend in this sleep Ohio River town to which Barkley flew Mrs. Hadley and her 17-year-old daughter, Anne, from St. Louis yesterday to be guests at his estate.

Last night Barkley threw an old-fashioned Southern dinner party for Mrs. Hadley in which bourbon highballs flowed and guests supped amid banks of colorful flowers. But the guests said they weren't able to tell from the conduct of the two whether wedding bells are impending.

Barkley returned to St. Louis with Mrs. Hadley and her daughter in his B-17 and planned to fly to Washington late tonight.

Probers Set To Recheck Gen. Waitt

Senators Say They Are Dissatisfied With Deep-Freeze Story by Vaughan

By David McConnell
NYHT News Service

The Senate Investigations Subcommittee's study of gifts of deep freeze units to six prominent Washington persons is expected to be temporarily side-tracked today in favor of another look into the activities of Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt.

General Waitt, suspended recently as chief of the Army Chemical Corps, is expected to be called today to explain evidence before the committee that he allegedly secretly discredited eight subordinate officers in an attempt to win for himself another term as head of the Chemical Corps.

He also will be questioned about his associations with James V. Hunt, the 5 percenter who has said he is a "close friend" of General Waitt and Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide.

Committee Dissatisfied

Members of the committee made plain yesterday they were far from satisfied with an explanation advanced by General Vaughan that friendship alone was the motive for gifts of deep freeze units to high Capital personages, including one to the home of President Truman's wife in Independence, Mo.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) said he wanted to find out if the Albert Verley Co., Chicago perfume concern which paid for the freezers and distributed them at General Vaughan's suggestion, received any favors in return. Senator Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) asserted that the testimony to date on the deep freeze gifts has raised as many new questions as the committee has received answers.

Mundt added that he was also "eager to hear" General Waitt's explanation of his "double entry system of making recommendations."

To Question Quirk, Gross

While the commitee's public hearings today will be focused on General Waitt, investigators are expected privately to question Robert Quirk, of Cudahy, Wis., whose company made the deep freeze units, and Albert J. Gross, Milwaukee manufacturer who assembled them and shipped them out upon payment of $3000 by David A. Bennett, president of the Verley Co. Both probably will testify in an open hearing at a later date.

General Vaughan said Saturday that in 1945 he asked Bennett and Harry Hoffman, Milwaukee advertising executive reportedly once associated with the perfume concern, to ship the freeze units as follows:

To himself; to the Little White House in Independence; to the White House in Washington for the lunchroom used by staff members; Fred M. Vinson, Chief Justice of the United States, who was Director of Economic Stabilization and later Secretary of the Treasury; John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury; James K. Socialists, Reds Trail; Voting Quiet

Christian Democrats And Free Democrats Assured Control Of Parliament

Frankfurt, Germany (Monday), Aug. 15 (AP).—Nearly complete returns in Western Germany's first parliamentary election today gave right-wing parties a decisive lead over Socialists.

The conservative Christian Democrats and the right-wing Free Democrats together were assured control of parliament as the returns shot up toward the 25 million mark.

Complete returns of 237 of the 242 election districts showed these totals:

Social Democrats (Socialists), 7,029,352.

Free Democrats, 2,839,447.

Communists, 1,379,514.

The Christian Democrats had won 132 in the parliament, the Social Democrats 112, the Free Democrats 36 and the Communists only six.

The Christian Democrats also led in the heavily-populated state of North Rhine-Westphalia, home of the industrial Ruhr. But the division of parliamentary seats had not been decided, due to a system of proportional representation in which 40 per cent of the seats are allocated on the basis of the percentage of the vote received by each party.

A similar system is followed in Bavaria.

Coalition Likely

No single party seemed likely to achieve a majority of the 400 seats in parliament. This would make a coalition government necessary, with the Christian Democrats and Free Democrats representing the most likely combination.

Voters flocked to the polls in numbers, surpassing all preelection forecasts. Western Allied officials had predicted fewer than 65 per cent of the 31 million eligible voters would ballot.

But in Hamburg, in the British zone, 82.4 per cent voted in probably the heaviest turnout of any of the 11 West German states. In Wuerttemberg-Baden, in the American zone, 72.4 per cent voted. This suggested nationalist appeals to the voters to boycott the election were largely ignored.

Lead Is 3 to 2

Christian Democrats and Free Democrats together held a three-to-two lead over left-wing parties even in the industrial Ruhr Valley. In this section both Socialists and Communists were expected to show great strength.

In Hesse, big industrial state in the American zone, the Social Democrats were ahead, closely followed by the Free Democrats. Elsewhere the Free Democrats were running stronger than expected.

In Flensburg, in the British zone, members of a right-wing bloc marched through the streets singing "Deutschland Ueber Alles," na-

Social Service Workers Ease Problems of Unwed Mothers

(Nearly every tenth child born in Washington last year was illegitimate. Six years ago, one of every 14 was illegitimate. This is the second of a series of articles devoted to some of the problems of unwed motherhood, as related by local officials whose agencies deal with this mounting social condition.)

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

A girl goes up the steps and rings the bell at a maternity home. Once inside, she doesn't know what to expect. How will she be treated? Will "they" want to know things she doesn't want to talk about? She may be over her panic at being pregnant, and unmarried. But by now she may also have broken with family, friends; cut all familiar ties in an effort to hide. The social worker looks at the girl who sits there, absolutely alone. She may be young, as was Marietta, just turned 19. She may be older. The first thought the girl always has is the same:

"Can I be sheltered here until I have my child? Will anyone know?"

"I don't care what happens after that. It's just until I have my child."

The social worker doesn't prod. She explains the way things are at the home; how long the girl will be in, that she should have regular physical check-ups. When the girl has moved in, the social worker talks again to her. Marietta was defiant at first. She would not tell who the father of her child was.

She didn't know. She had been out on a blind date. She'd been drinking. She'd passed out. That was all she knew.

The social worker accepted this. It is an old story. Dollars to dimes there isn't ever a word of truth in it. In Marietta's case, there wasn't. But it took her a while to lose the distrust she had built up during the months she had been alone, waiting for the awful moment when she would have to tell "some hatchet-faced woman" (as Marietta had thought it would be) that she was

Firing Squad Rifles Climax Army Coup; Berazi, Gen. Zayim Assailed as Traitors

Damascus, Syria, Aug. 14 (AP).—Col. Sami Hennawi seized control of Syria today in a military coup climaxed by the death of the president and premier before a firing squad.

President Husni Zayim, who seized power on March 30, and Premier Muhsen Bey Berazi were executed at dawn by a firing squad after a brief trial before senior army officers.

A series of communiques did not specify the charges, but called the two traitors, tyrants and dictators.

Colonel Hennawi met with a group of politicians. They asked Hasem Bey Attassi, former president of the republic, to form a new cabinet. He accepted and began consultations.

Armed Forces Chief

Hennawi, who fought alongside Zayim in the Palestine War, installed himself as chief of the armed forces formerly headed by Zayim, with the title of field marshal.

Hennawi told the assembled politicians that Zayim's "conceit and despotism" had caused him to deviate from his aims when he took over the government March 30.

He charged Zayim with reckless spending of government funds. Hennawi assailed the dead Premier as having no opinion or viewpoint except his own.

Zayim became president in a June referendum following his own coup.

The meeting took place in Hennawi's headquarters. Present were about 30 deputies from the last parliament, and 15 politicians representing parties dissolved by Zayim. Among those present was Faris

'Terrific Error,' Riley Says of Executions

Jerusalem, Palestine, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—United States Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, chief of the United Nations Palestine staff, said today that the execution of Syria's President and Premier was a "terrific error" and a threat to peace efforts in the Middle East.

"Zayim (Syrian President Husnizayim) was instrumental in concluding the (Syrian) armistice with Israel," Riley said. "The world has lost two outstanding leaders who might have done much to gain peace in the Near and Middle East."

Two Bishops Consecrated In Slovakia

Roman Catholics Defy Czech Order For Prior Approval

Trnava, Slovakia, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Roman Catholic Church consecrated two titular bishops before an overflow crowd here today despite a transport blockade that halved the expected attendance.

The church hierarchy had defied an order by Czechoslovakia's Communist government that all such church ceremonies and pilgrimages must obtain prior government approval.

Pilgrims found Bratislava, the Slovak capital, a bottleneck on their journey to this city of 30,000. Trnava is about 30 miles northeast of Bratislava.

Railway agents advised travelers no trains were stopping in Trnava today because of "technical reasons." Sunday bus service to this city also was eliminated. Bratislava taxicab drivers refused to make the drive.

But 3000 persons jammed into St. Nicholas Church to witness the ceremonies and another 3000 stood outside. Most of them were residents of Trnava. No uniformed police were visible.

All Czech and Slovak bishops were present except the nation's primate, Archbishop Josef Beran, who has led the months-long fight against government control of the church. He remained in seclusion at his police-guarded palace in Prague.

The new bishops are Msgr. Am-

58 Aboard Plane As It Crashes Off Ireland

Shannon, Ireland (Monday) Aug. 15 (U.P.).—A Transocean Airlines plane carrying 58 passengers and crew crashed into the sea early today 2 miles west of Kilkee in County Clare.

Aboard were 49 displaced persons and a crew of 9. The plane was enroute from Rome to Caracas, Venezuela. There was no indication whether there were any survivors.

The plane circled over Shannon Airfield, dropping Very lights, but did not communicate with the radio tower before the crash.

Chinese Reds Seize Islands Off Coast

Amphibious Assaults Viewed as Rehearsals For Invading Formosa

Hongkong, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Communist amphibious forces have seized several Nationalist-held island naval bases off the north coast of China in an effort to crack the Government blockade of Communist-held ports, Formosa dispatches said today.

The assault on the small islands appeared to be a full dress rehearsal for a Communist invasion of Formosa. Red Army forces already have begun consolidating the Fukien Province coast opposite Formosa as an invasion base.

The islands seized are part of the Changshan Archipelago in the Gulf of Chihli, from which Nationalist gunboats have blocked shipping to the North China port of Tientsin. The islands extend from the north tip of Shantung Peninsula toward Manchuria.

The Hongkong Standard, quoting Nationalist naval sources, said several larger islands still were in Nationalist hands despite furious Red assaults. These are the last Government-held outposts in North China.

This account said the Communists mobilized large numbers of ships, motorized junks and wooden vessels to transport 20,000 troops to the scene of attack. The assault coincided with the absence of a large Nationalist squadron patrolling elsewhere.

This was the first known instance of a Communist amphibious assault on such a large scale. It was across a body of water much narrower than the Formosa Strait, but indications were the Communists were planning to attack Formosa.

Several Communist columns were reported closing in on Foochow, cutting the highway south to Amoy. These two ports, opposite Formosa, have been the Government's principal debarkation points for Formosan reinforcements.

Red forces 210 miles north of Canton were said to be tightening their ring around Kanchow, despite strong resistance, while Government resistance in the Hengshan area, 100 miles to the west, was reported stiffening.

Ex-Slovak Minister Detained In N. Y. as 'Suspected' Red

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Gen. Mikulas Ferjencik, former Slovakian minister of defense, was detained as "a suspected Communist" today on his arrival from Europe as a displaced person.

Ferjencik

Inspector Edward Ferro of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Ferjencik, 44, and his wife, Milada, 32, would be held on Ellis Island pending further investigation.

The two were among 822 displaced persons arriving from Bremerhaven on the United States Army transport General Heintzelman.

Earlier a group of about 20 persons gathered outside the pier and paraded with placards which read: "Americans, deport bloody General Ferjencik, chief of the N. K. V. D." (Soviet secret police now called the MVD) and "Americans, do not admit General Ferjencik, who crashed down Slovak, anti-Red underground."

The group said they were members of the American Slovak League and the American Friends of Slovak Freedom.

Ferjencik arrived as an individual and was not sponsored by any organization.

Lowell E. Jones, honorary president of the American Friends of Slovak Freedom, charged Ferjencik, who also served as Slovak Secretary of the Interior, joined the Communist uprising in Slovakia, then a semiautonomous state, and went to Moscow for Communist training.

Ferjencik remained in Czechoslovakia after the final Communist coup until July, 1948, when he escaped over the border with another Czech general, Antonin Hasal.

District Man, 88, Dies in Beating; Neighbor Held

An 88-year-old man was found beaten to death in the hallway of the apartment house where he lived at 12:40 p. m. yesterday and his 60-year-old neighbor was arrested in his slaying.

Occupants of the apartments at 942 I st. nw., aroused by sounds of an altercation, found Joseph B. Quigley, 88, dead in the hallway. A bloodstained brick was nearby.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, said Quigley's skull was fractured and his face beaten to a pulp. Charles Calvin Jones, 60, was arrested in the case and detained for appearance before a coroner's jury at 11:30 a. m. today. He denied having quarreled with Quigley but police said his condition was such he could not be questioned in detail immediately.

Rokossovsky Is Reported Bomb Target

MARSHAL ROKOSSOVSKY
. . . Declined to die

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The British military government organ West Am Sonntag said today that a time bomb exploded at a Soviet reception in Potsdam July 25, killing 20 high-ranking Russian officers, including the Potsdam city commander.

The newspaper said the bomb plot was an attempt to assassinate Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, Soviet commander in Europe, but that he escaped death by failing to attend the reception in his honor.

The newspaper said it received its information from officials in the Brandenburg provincial government. Potsdam is the capital of Brandenburg and headquarters of Soviet forces in Germany.

American intelligence sources in Berlin said they were unable to confirm the story. They said reports of the incident had been current in Berlin for several days, but that nothing had been learned from United States sources to substantiate them.

The newspaper report said the bomb was planted under the table at which Rokossovsky was to have sat in the Marmor Palaise Restaurant.

By The Associated Press

A call for an "American continental congress for peace" in Mexico City made the State Department see red yesterday. A department official said it apparently will be "Moscow directed."

The call was announced by the New York office of the congress in the name of some 300 educators, artists, writers and unionists in United States and of similar groups in other American countries.

Among those listed as members of the United States committee for the congress were Dr. W. E. B. Dubois, anthropoligist; Dr. Linus Pauling, scientist; Paul Robeson, the Negro singer; Actor Charles Chaplin; and John Rogge, former United States Attorney General.

A statement issued by the New York office said the congress is meeting September 5-10 to discuss ways to prevent World War III. It declared the sponsors believe that "war preparations and accompanying anti-democratic measures" are hindering efforts of the American peoples to live together, in peace and freedom, in a free and peaceful world.

Roger W. Tubby, a press officer for the State Department, told a reporter:

"It appears that it will be another Moscow-directed conference. We fully expect that the activities will be devoted to providing an apologia for the Moscow point of view."

Tubby said also that "in our view it will merely be a conference similar to that held in New York City under the sponsorship of Harlow Shapley."

The New York meeting to which he referred was the "cultural and scientific conference for world peace" held last March. Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer, is chairman of the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions, which sponsored that meeting. Henry A. Wallace, former Vice President, was one of the principal speakers there. Shapley also is listed as a sponsor of the Mexico gathering.

Soviets Blast Tito Again

Moscow, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Moscow newspapers assailed the Yugoslav government of Marshal Tito for the third straight day today, as an "enemy and opponent of the Soviet Union."

The official newspaper Izvestia said a Soviet note branding Yugoslavia as an "enemy" had "unmasked the Tito clique as double-dealers and cheaters of the Yugoslav peoples."

Izvestia said that "despite the unbridled anti-Soviet slanders and precautions carried out by the Tito regime, the peoples of Yugoslavia remain faithful to the cause of socialism and democracy, and see the Soviet Union as a liberator, their true friend and an ally.

"That is why the clique of imperialist agents ruling Yugoslavia resort to deceiving the people on the true character of their policy."

Izvestia's remarks were carried as a commentary on Tass dispatches from New York and European capitals on reaction to the Soviet's denunciation of Yugoslavia. The dispatches were printed prominently in every newspaper.

An official Tass agency dispatch from Prague described the "provocative activities" of Yugoslav diplomats in Czechoslovakia, and a Belgrade dispatch said the Soviet note was ignored by the press of Yugoslavia.

Red Flags Blanket Youth Festival In Budapest

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 14 (AP).—The red banner of communism dominated a field of flags in suburban Budapest, where the World Festival of Youth and Students opened today.

Thousands of boys and girls, in national costumes, sports jackets and military uniforms marched before cheering spectators.

The delegations from the "people's democracies," including the Russian zone of Germany, carried flags and posters with pictures of Stalin and other Communist leaders.

Delegations from the United States and Britain held aloft the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack. A poster carried by the U. S. delegation said "American youth demands peace, jobs and democracy."

Following speeches by the youth leaders, white doves were released as thousands shouted "peace, peace," in their native tongues.

Bevin and Cripps to Prepare For Dollar-Crisis Talks Here

London, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps will return to London in the next two weeks to prepare for the most critical conference for Britain since the war ended, informants said today.

The conference will be in Washington next month when the British, Americans and Canadians meet to try to solve the world dollar crisis, slowly driving Britain to bankruptcy.

Bevin has been on a vacation and attending the European Assembly in Strasbourg. Cripps has been in a rest home in Switzerland, recovering from an old ailment.

U. N. Assembly to Meet

Although the economic crisis will top the list of urgent problems, the Washington conference is expected to survey the whole field of problems facing the Western world.

A rough agenda for Washington this fall—not counting the United Nations General Assembly meetings in Lake Success—would look like this:

The financial-economic talks of the Americans, British and Canadians. Other countries may be brought in.

Annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund, where the question of the revaluation of currencies and the United States price for gold is bound to come up.

The Atlantic Pact talks—both on the Foreign Minister and military level—to complete organization under the pact and to get the military parts of it functioning.

Talks on China Likely

Anglo-American talks about China and the Far Eastern crisis, where Britain is worried about its last bastion — Hongkong — and where the Communists continue to spread their influence.

Almost certain discussions between American and British officials about the growing tide of anti-British criticism in America, now being matched by a rising volume of anti-American criticism in Britain.

VFW Indorses DAR Fight on World Federation

Col. A. C. Oliver, former national chaplain of the VFW, praised the DAR for taking the lead in creation of a new patriots' executive committe to wage the battle against world federation plans. Oliver will represent the VFW on the committee.

The patriots' committee will direct its campaign particularly toward proposals by the Atlantic Union Committee and the United World Federalists.

World Bank Loan For Tito Studied

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 14 (AP).—Yugoslavia's bid for a World Bank loan is to come under an on-the-spot scrutiny by a special bank commission this week.

The government expects the commission to arrive Monday. It is investigating the Yugoslav application for a loan to bolster the nation's economic position in a period of increasing attacks from other Communist nations of Russian-dominated Eastern Europe.

Upon the commission's decision may depend the degree of success Premier Marshal Tito will achieve in maintaining an independent position—halfway between East and West—and fulfilling his own five-year plan for developing Yugoslav resources.

Responsible diplomatic officials say they expect the commission will give approval to at least a substantial part of Yugoslavia's request, and then adopt a wait-and-see attitude on the balance.

Although figures are unavailable, it is generally expected a loan of about 50 million dollars to meet Yugoslavia's immediate needs will be recommended. The country is requesting 280 million dollars.

The commission may also set up a priority list of things for which the loan can be spent, with the likelihood transportation, timber cutting and mining equipment and agricultural machinery will be among the first.

Hoffman Flies To Paris on Inspection Tour

Paris, Aug. 14 (AP).—Paul G. Hoffman, administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration, flew to Paris from Britain today on his European inspection tour.

"I have come here to join Mr. Harriman and travel around western Europe," Hoffman told newsmen. "We will be seeing all the chiefs of missions and getting their feel of the situation. We want to have not only their written reports, but personal impressions." Averell Harriman, European ECA head, met him at the airport.

105-Day-Old Strike Depresses Town

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—A boom is being turned into a bust by a 15-week strike against the city's only major industry, Mayor James T. Kirk said today.

The city's 130,000 residents are being forced to pull in their belts because 9000 workers struck 105 days ago against the Singer Sewing Machine plant and put $500,000 a week in buying power out of circulation, Kirk said.

The Mayor, the Chamber of Commerce, banks and merchants reported that business is off 10 to 50 per cent as the result of the strike. Strikers are selling their cars and war bonds to pay rent. Savings accounts are dwindling. Taverns and movies have lost business.

Speedup Charged

Local 401, CIO United Electrical Workers, called the strike against the 73-year-old Singer plant. It was the first strike in the plant's history. The workers called the company's incentive plan a speedup. The company said it could not operate without the system.

About 7500 workers walked out. The company closed up shop, idling 1500 more. Not so much as a needle or a bobbin have been turned out in the 15 weeks. The 9000 workers have lost $7,500,000 in pay. They represent 25 per cent of the population. The company won't say what it has lost.

The national union has spent $200,000 footing milk bills, buying groceries, paying doctors, supplying medicine, paying rents and financing mortgages since the strike began. Robert Brennan, president of Local 401, said the union is spending about $25,000 a week now.

The City Welfare Department has paid out $11,000 to 85 strikers. The Chamber of Commerce said banks have reported that savings accounts are dwindling and war bonds are being cashed.

Leslie Lifson, merchant and chairman of the Retail Merchants Bureau, said neighborhood stores have lost as much as 50 per cent of their business. Larger stores have lost only about 10 per cent. Many are giving credit to strikers, promising not to press for payment until they go back to work.

R. Marvin Williams, merchandising manager of Goerk's department store, who left a business in Flint, Mich., because of strikes there, was pessimistic. He said that not only have workers stopped buying, but also the people who live off them—tavernkeepers, cafe owners, grocers and butchers.

"I'd Do It Again"

"Conditions are serious now," he said. "They will be critical by October or November."

What about the strikers? The union is doing all it can for them. It's giving them the bare necessities, free haircuts and a lot of moral support.

Striker Joe Young, father of four, made $79 a week as an assembler. He owns a two-family house and rents the upstairs for $35 a month. The union is making his $62-a-month mortgage payments and paying out $13 a week for groceries and milk.

"We're eating all right," he said. "The strike is worth while. I'd do it again, I guess."

Akron Lad Wins

D.C. Boy, 14, Defeated in 'Soap' Derby

Alfred E. Ashton, 14-year-old Washington entry in the All-American Soap-Box Derby, was defeated in the third round of four qualifying championship races yesterday at Akron, Ohio.

An Akron youngster, Freddie Derks, also 14, nosed out two other finalists to win first prize, a $5000 college scholarship, in the twelfth annual event. His time for the 975-foot incline was 27.16 seconds.

Donald Kelpsch, 14, of Detroit, was second, losing the finals by a yard. Third place went to Charles P. Muhl, jr., 14, of Cleveland, who previously eliminated Ashton in the qualifying races.

Ashton, red-haired and freckled, lives at 2802 31st st. se. He won the District championship semi-finals on the Pennsylvania ave. se., speedway July 9.

His winning time for that event was 31.6 seconds. His best time yesterday was 27.05 seconds, faster than the winning time of 27.16 seconds. However, in the qualifying events, a slow time of 27.31 seconds eliminated him from competition. His sponsor at the races yesterday was the Evening Star.

More than 40,000 persons watched the 148 entries, reresenting 40 States, Panama, Canada and Alaska speed their home-made racers down the sloped course. The race concluded a week-long round of entertainment and preparations for the regional champions.

Night Club Fire Follows Slaying Of Radio Man

Alice, Tex., Aug. 14 (AP).—Vandals tried to burn down early today the night club which figured in the slaying of W. H. (Bill) Mason, crusading radio commentator.

Mason, in his last broadcast, blasted the club, the Rancho Alegro, as a place where prostitution was practiced and declared Deputy Sheriff Sam Smithwick owned the property.

Next day Mason was shot to death in his car. Smithwick placed himself in jail and was charged with murder at his examination, he was identified as the man who killed the broadcaster.

Rags and paper were stuffed under the rear of the night club and set afire, but a watchman put out the fire.

Woman Organist Gets Jail Leave To Play at Church

Central City, Colo., Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The organist at St. Mary's Catholic Church filled her usual Sunday engagement today in the company of a deputy sheriff, and with the permission of the county jailer.

Mrs. Alice Ramstetter, the 68-year-old musician-cafe owner who went to jail three days ago rather than post bond on gambling charges, showed up at the church right on time. On hand to greet her were the parishioners and Father Francis Potemka, the pastor. After the service, the organist went back to her cell.

Mrs. Ramstetter's jailing has thrown into the background Justice of the Peace Lowell Griffith's antigambling crusade, which resulted in issuance of warrants for Mrs. Ramstetter and 38 others.

Airlift Aids Quake Victims

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The American "mercy airlift" carried 42,000 tons of supplies into Ecuador's earthquake-wrecked interior and brought out 603 persons during its first week of operations, it was announced today.

Some 20 United States Air Force planes, mostly from the Canal Zone, were rushed here last week to aid in relief work.

An official report said 272 injured persons and 331 refugees had been flown here from Ambato in planes returning from supply flights to the shattered inland town. En route, the planes brought 20,000 tons of supplies and 31 doctors and nurses.

Prayers Asked For Polio End

New York, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Many churches today offered up prayers for an end of the polio epidemic, threatening to become one of the worst in United States history.

All Catholics in the New York Archdiocese were asked at mass to join in private prayers today, Monday and Tuesday to implore an end "to the scourge of the present epidemic of infantile paralysis."

The New York City Health Department reported 35 new cases during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. today. The figure, half of yesterday's all-time daily record of 70 new cases, brought the number so far this year to 953.

MRS. MARGERY CATON AND DAUGHTER

The entry blank said "regardless of age, looks or form," so 16-month-old Cathy Caton of 5820 22d st. N., Arlington, figures her auburn ringlets stand a good chance of winning a prize in a contest for redheads which highlights the third annual Falls Church festival this week.

Cathy will have competition, however, since her mother, Margery, and 48 other entries have indicated they think they have the tresses that can persuade the judges to "see red" and give them a cash award of $50 as well as other prizes.

The shenanigans are a part of the three-day "Virginia Village" festival which will wind up a week of Falls Church social activities that began Saturday

Mine Welfare Payments Face Check

By the United Press

The Senate Banking Committee this week will tackle the problem of whether coal operators can deduct their contributions to the United Mine Workers welfare fund for tax purposes, it was announced yesterday.

Meantime, if the soft coal producers and UMW President John L. Lewis should fail to agree on a new contract, the issue could precipitate a Nation-wide mine shutdown next month when the next payments to the welfare fund are due.

The operators have asked the Treasury Department for a ruling on the matter but have not received an answer. The 20-cents-a-ton contributions are used to pay pensions and welfare benefits to aged and disabled coal miners.

Committee to Make Check

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) said the banking group will check into the matter as part of its current investigation of whether the mine workers union has become a monopoly. In a statement reviewing the results of the inquiry so far, he said:

"Testimony will be offered this week to the effect that the welfare fund, amounting to about 100 million dollars a year, is not deductible by the operators as a business expense and cannot be classed as a pension fund for tax purposes because the miners have no vested interest in it."

While Robertson did not elaborate, it was understood that the testimony would be given by an attorney in private practice.

The mine owners are particularly concerned because they contend their contract with the UMW expired yesterday. Thus, they argue, further payments to the welfare fund would be illegal under the Taft-Hartley law since a written agreement no longer exists and they would have to pay taxes on the money.

Point Brought to Attention

That point was brought to their attention at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., last week when the Northern and Eastern commercial soft coal producers decided not to challenge Lewis' three-day work week. It also was pointed out, however, that their next payments are not due until September 20.

But if no agreement is reached by then—and if the operators should decide to stop payments to the fund—Lewis almost certainly would call his miners out of the pits. He made even the three-day work week conditional on continued payments.

In his summation, Robertson said testimony thus far "indicated the United Mine Workers union has a monopoly over the production of coal and is now using it to control production."

He also said there had been "general agreement" among witnesses "that legislation is needed to curb the powers of monopolistic unions which now are beyond the reach of either labor or anti-trust laws."

American Fatally Shot In Manila

GEORGE MURRAY
. . . Slain in Manila

Manila, Aug. 14 (AP).—Personable young George Murray, former head of the United State Army Criminal Investigation Division in Manila, was shot to death in his bedroom yesterday.

Murray, 26, had helped break up a local narcotics ring shortly after the war. He later entered the United States surplus property market.

He was slain between 4 and 5 a. m., yesterday. Four bullets from his own .38-caliber revolver were fired into his head and chest. Police found the gun in the garden.

Robbery was ruled out as a motive for the death of the former Kansas City, Mo., man. There was no sign of a struggle, said police of San Juan, a Manila suburb.

The widow, Mrs. Ester Murray, told police her husband had gone to a Manila night club Friday night. He took his revolver with him.

She said he returned early yesterday and asked her to draw money for him from the bank next day to make a payment of $1000.

Mrs. Murray said she was in the kitchen making coffee when she heard shots, then the barking of the Murray's five bulldogs, and went upstairs to find her husband dead.

3 Million Plus Is Handled for Casino in Record

Deauville, France, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—A record total of one billion francs (about $3,500,000) changed hands at the casino here Friday night, casino officials reported today.

The casino profit for the evening was 16 million francs (about $56,800), almost half the amount taken in during the entire month of July, the officials said.

Among the players Friday were the Maharaja of Baroda, Prince Aly Khan and Dorothy Thompson, American journalist.

Argentine Envoy Withdraws Demand to Fight Bramuglia

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Remorino-Bramuglia duel is off.

Jeronimo Remorino, Argentine ambassador to Washington, withdrew last night his demand for satisfaction on the dueling field from Juan A. Bramuglia, newly resigned Foreign Minister.

Usually reliable sources said Remorino would return to his post in the United States in a few days.

Remorino was reported to have accused Bramuglia of interfering with has efforts to work out a trade plan with the United States. Bramuglia was said to have accused Remorino of usurping authority and trying to undermine him. In the heat of the argument in front of President Juan Peron, Bramuglia was reported to have punched the ambassador.

Bramuglia resigned, and President Peron accepted the resignation yesterday. At about the same time Remorino's seconds waited on Bramuglia, who named two seconds.

After a long conference, the seconds announced that Remorino had withdrawn his challenge. It was understood that Bramuglia did not apologize.

Tydings Says Congress Can Quit by Labor Day

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) said yesterday that Congress can quit around Labor Day but it may be in session until October or November unless it buckles down.

Assailing "the long-winded and quite often useless waste of time in debates," Tydings said the Senate must discipline itself. He advocated limitation on debate on matters where defense or public health and safety are involved.

Sharp Drop Revealed In Jap Exports for '48

Tokyo, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Japanese Ministry of Trade and Industry reported today that only 9.2 per cent of Japan's industrial production was exported in 1948, compared with 38 per cent before the war.

This, it said in a special report, was the principal reason for Japan's present economic troubles.

Syrian President, Premier Executed by Firing Squad

el Khouri, who heads Syria's delegation to the United Nations.

It was disclosed that in addition to the two men executed two others were under arrest. They were Nazir Fansa, secretary to Zayim, and Maj. Ibrahim Hussayni, chief of the military police, who offered opposition when the men behind the coup came to arrest Zayim.

Hennawi is 31. He served in the Turkish army in 1916, and later came over to the Arab forces. He became a full colonel in April of this year after serving in Palestine.

(Associated Press correspondent Fred Zusy said in Tehran that the possibility of Zayim being assassinated was discussed in Damascus by foreign observers several months ago.

(His opponents were said to include the wealthy landowner class, Moslem religious leaders, and certain government officials dissatisfied over Zayim's "one-man" policies. Higher taxes drew the opposition of the wealthy, religious leaders were aroused over proposed reforms, such as votes for women and the removal of the wearing of veils.)

Syrian broadcasts said Hennawi told the people he is not seizing power, and quoted him as saying: "We want a free republic of Syria, not a government by the military. We are ready to turn over power to a government chosen by the people."

One broadcast gave this description of the coup:

Three carloads of Syrian army officers rode to Zayim's home early this morning and forced their way in after a brief fight with sentries. They awoke and arrested Zayim and then went on to Premier Berazi's home. He was arrested without resistance.

The military tribunal was formed immediately, and sentenced both to death after trial. They were executed in the Mezzah Citadel military barracks.

None of the first six communiques made clear the immediate reasons for the executions, but they contained generalities tending to indicate the militarists felt Zayim had failed to keep promises to bring Syria out of the muddle arising mainly from the Palestine fighting.

One communique said Zayim, whose coup had army support last March, promised to give Syria an administration that would restore her dignity and self-respect.

It said the Army and the Nation upheld these ambitions, but charged that his new powers blinded him and that, on bad advice, he was heading Syria toward economic disaster.

The communique said the Army wants nothing more than safety for Syria and thought that men unskilled in politics should go back to their barracks, leaving politics in expert hands.

Until the March coup, Zayim had been an obscure Army officer. The bespectacled Premier Berazi, who died with him, was regarded as the brains of the regime.

Zayim pledged his administration to a policy of internal reform and stiffening the frontiers against any aggression.

The reference to the frontiers was taken to mean that Syria would resist any encroachments from Israel and the "greater Syria" ambitions of King Addullah of Hashemite Jordan.

Abdullah, whose long-range goal is to expand the Hashemite dynasty's rule over other parts of the Middle East, said in Amman today the Syrian crisis should be taken up urgently by the seven-nation Arab League. A League meeting is scheduled for next Saturday in Alexandria, Egypt.

Speculation developed on the fate of the American Trans-Arabian oil pipeline outlet on the Mediterranean in Syria. Zayim, whose regime had the blessing of the United States and the former French mandate rulers of Syria, had approved the American oilhead in Syria against some domestic opposition. Britain maintained a stand-offish attitude.

The Government of President Al Sayed al Kuwatly, which Zayim overthrew in his coup, had refused to sign a pipeline agreement.

In his last interview with the Associated Press three days ago, Zayim told of his hopes for something like the Atlantic Pact for the Middle East countries, and said he would sponsor it. He was against including Israel, however, contending the Zionist Palestine would provide an entry for communism.

Many Nations Conquered Syria in Its History

Syria, trouble spot of the Arab world this spring and summer, is ancient in history and new as an independent republic.

In Biblical and pre-Christian times, it was conquered succesively by the Assyrians, Babylonians, Persians, Macedonians and Romans. The early Mohammedan Arabs conquered it in 636 A. D., passing it along to other Moslems, the Egyptians and Turks.

Confidence Man Nabbed

to leave town, said Bills, he used a twin-engine airplane belonging to the firm.

After establishing their background, the FBI charged, the two moved in on an Atlanta newspaper, offering to publish a directory at no cost which would provide the paper with valuable free advertising.

The paper agreed and the two set up shop, complete with attractive women secretaries and telephone solicitors, and began contacting prospects.

After obtaining thousands of dollars, using the newspaper as a reference, the two disappeared, the FBI charged.

Meanwhile, said the Federal agency, they had set up bank accounts in half a dozen States and began a series of manipulations that ran into the thousands again.

They would deposit a worthless check to their account in one bank, after establishing their credit, drawn on another. While the check was going through a clearing house, they would present a check to a third bank.

This bank would contact the one on which the check was drawn to verify the deposit. With the phony check deposit listed, the FBI relater, the bank would okay the check and the third bank would pay off. None of the checks, of course, was good, the FBI added.

Bills said both Silversmith and Young were graduates of the Illinois State penitentiary at Joliet, where they served time for fraud.

Young will be arraigned before a United States commissioner at Birmingham tomorrow on charges of mail fraud, said Bills.

The FBI added that Silversmith was sentenced to five years by a Federal court in 1947 for violating the National Stolen Property Act and for mail fraud.

Anacostia Pool

Considering the state of the weather recently, there is a natural desire to have the Anacostia swimming pool reopened at the earliest feasible moment. That desire apparently prompted the refilling of the pool with water last week and led a few youngsters to clamber over the fence to take advantage of it. The officials of the Interior Department and the District Recreation Board, who are still trying to agree upon a policy for operation of this and other public pools in the District, may well note this pressure of public demand. But its effect should be to hasten agreement and not to bring about a reopening of the pool before an agreement has been reached.

Washington scarcely needs to be reminded that the Anacostia pool was closed some weeks ago because of racial clashes there. To reopen it now, with no agreement as to whether it shall be operated on a segregated or nonsegregated basis in the future, would be an invitation to further trouble. It would suggest to rival white and Negro groups that, since the governmental agencies in charge have been unable to settle their differences, force and hoodlumism may be the determining factors in deciding the policy to be followed. In these circumstances, it would be difficult to avoid tragic consequences.

The possibility of reaching a reasonable solution has not yet been exhausted, as was indicated by the Recreation Board's recent offer to operate the McKinley and Banneker pools on a nonsegregated basis. We hope that a complete understanding will soon be attained. The community can then mobilize whatever resources may be necessary to carry out the new policy in good faith. But a temporary opening of Anacostia pool before the basic issues have been resolved would undoubtedly be a setback to the negotiations as well as to the cause of amicable race relations in Washington.

Rising Freight Rates

The latest authorized increase in freight rates, added to the interim adjustments recently granted by the ICC, amount to an over-all increase of about 9 per cent since the end of 1948, or 57 per cent since the middle of 1946. The ICC is well aware that successive increases of this magnitude may divert traffic to competing transportation agencies. "We, as well as the carriers," it said, "must consider seriously whether further increases now may result in less revenue and thus defeat their (the roads') purpose."

However, the carriers are confronted by conditions that, for revenue reasons, make further increases in freight rates imperative. Their operating expenses have risen sharply since the end of the war, as have prices of materials and supplies, although the latter have declined somewhat since last fall. Carloadings are well below the level of a year ago, and pending increases in hourly wage rates, resulting from the introduction of the 40-hour week for nonoperating employes next month, will add an estimated 398 million dollars annually to operating costs.

On the basis of rates, fares and charges now in effect, the ICC estimates that in the current year the roads will receive a return of only 3.23 per cent on their 1948 property valuation. If the 40-hour week had been in effect throughout the year, the estimated return would drop to 2.44 per cent—or presumably even lower on the basis of 1949 property valuations. Additions to revenue anticipated from the forthcoming rate increases amount to 293 million dollars on an annual basis—much less than the estimated annual increase in expenses resulting from introduction of the 40-hour week. The latest freight rate increases will thus not solve the problem of shrinking revenues and mounting operating expenditures.

The carriers are, of course, handicapped in effecting necessary adjustments by a slow-moving regulatory system, although the ICC has of late speeded up its procedures. But even if the ICC were willing to assent to all the roads' demands, without delay, their problems could not be solved by merely increasing transportation charges. With business declining, increases in freight rates may lead to higher costs for consumption goods and a further decrease of business for the railways. Even if the roads succeed in obtaining more revenue for less traffic, the trend is, as the ICC says, "not a healthy one, either for the railroads or for the Nation." Hence it urges railway managements to do their utmost to increase efficiency and reduce the cost of operations. The ICC adds significantly that the cooperation of employes, from top to bottom, is also essential to determine where weaknesses lie and for the application of remedies.

So far railway labor unions have shown little disposition to cooperate with management for the purpose of reducing operating costs and increasing their own efficiency. On the contrary, feather-bedding practices, strikes, and threats of strikes to secure wage increases have been and are likely to remain a major cause of rising operating expenses that increase the pressure for higher rates.

General Fixit

General Vaughan evidently believes that he has set everything right by his explanation of how the deep-freeze units happened to be sent to Mrs. Truman and to a small group of the President's intimate associates and how the bill for them was paid by the head of a perfumery concern deeply involved in the import trade. Viewed in the light of the general's behavior since he became military aide to Mr. Truman, the explanation is altogether plausible. It reflects that extraordinary combination of officiousness, naivete and political ineptitude that make General Vaughan's friendship and devotion so dangerous and troublesome to his crony and patron.

It was just another occasion on which General Vaughan could not deny himself the pleasure of playing Mr. Fixit. It was about four years ago when the deep-freezing mechanism was an innovation, and the subject just naturally came up in the course of a conversation between the general and his two old friends, the Messrs. Hoffman and Bennett. General Vaughan told of his desire to possess one of these gadgets for himself and to send another to the Truman household at Independence. Mr. Hoffman, an advertising man, and something of a Mr. Fixit himself, observed that if the general would be content with experimental models that were not to be put into commercial production, he could arrange the matter. And that was that. The refrigerators were personal gifts from the general to his friends; but since Mr. Bennett was present at this arrangement, it doubtless seemed only courteous to let him have a hand in it; and so, as it appears from the testimony of Mr. Albert Gross, he was permitted to pay the bills.

The general saw no impropriety in all this, nor, apparently, did the recipients of the gifts. After all, the sending of gifts of one kind or another to important public personages is an old American custom, and hardly a day goes by that gifts are not delivered to the White House. What to do with these gifts is one of the perennial problems of presidential housekeeping.

Thus the acceptance of the deep-freeze units from General Vaughan, or General Vaughan's business friends, need not suggest any disposition on the part of the personages concerned to grant official favors in return. Indeed, the value of the gifts is not great enough to arouse suspicion of venality. There is certainly nothing here to suggest a scandal on the proportions of the Teapot Dome, nor even such a shocking example of the abuse of a privileged position as were the financial adventures of Mr. Elliott Roosevelt. It is an even farther cry from the grandiose varieties of graft associated with the business of military procurement in the days of Secretary Cameron and Secretary Alger for example. The truth is that such financial irregularities as were once tolerated in a man like Daniel Webster would mean political death to any modern statesman of comparable rank.

It is General Vaughan's irresistible urge to interfere, with what are doubtless the best of motives, in the affairs of all Government departments, that is basically responsible for the embarrassment he has brought on his friends. For it has raised an ugly suspicion that his gregarious nature and his incurable meddlesomeness were easily exploited by men whose purposes were less pure and amiable than his own. In an interview with Mr. Edward T. Folliard, published in The Washington Post last February, General Vaughan related what the President had said in his presence to General Eisenhower when that officer succeeded General Marshall as Chief of Staff.

> Whenever you have anything to take up with me, I'll appreciate it if you will take it up first with General Vaughan. When I have any matter to take up with you, I'll take it up through General Vaughan.
> Then turning to Vaughan the President said: "At other times you mind your own business."

It would have been well for General Vaughan and for his patron had he been temperamentally capable of obeying such an order.

Birthday

It is quite likely that the historian may rate the awakening of Asia as a more significant phenomenon of our times than the Bolshevik revolution in Russia. The ferment as of this moment is rising so rapidly that stabilization seems far off. Perhaps the greatest hope lies in India and Pakistan, the two countries which are celebrating today the second anniversary of their independence from British rule. Both countries have done wonders in administration in the short time they have been enjoying their new freedom. Amid the general turmoil in the world at large the achievement on the part of both countries is considerable.

As if, however, the problems attendant upon the assumption of responsibility were not enough, the Indian Union and Pakistan have the additional problem of building a foundation of neighborliness. This is not yet completed. The main difficulty is the status of Kashmir, whether it should be Indian or Pakistan. Rival claims are still unreconciled, but the fighting over Kashmir, which for months has cast a shadow over Indian-Pakistan relations, has at last ceased. To some observers the sharp remarks of Premier Nehru the other day boded ill for the maintenance of the cease-fire order. He appeared to be underlining India's claims while rebuking alleged warmongers in Pakistan. However, it turns out that his purpose was pacific, for an Indian-Pakistan conference has been called on the ministerial level for August 17. The announcement has kindled new hope, not least in the West, where it is recognized that Indian-Pakistan tranquillity is of transcendant importance to stabilization in Asia.

It is to be hoped that on this day neighborliness will be the keynote of the celebrations. Chaos and communism in nearby countries in Asia should be the driving impetus to the statesmen of the two countries to seek peace and pursue it. If they don't, both these enemies of order, like thieves in the night, will take possession of their inheritance. The United States in its new position of world responsibility needs India and Pakistan as partners in world pacification, and is looking forward to the visit of Premier Nehru to this country, a visit which is now slated for October 11. In the meantime a birthday greeting to India and Pakistan!

Reorganization Peril

The fate of reorganization Plan No. 1, creating a Department of Welfare, and Plan No. 2, shifting the Bureau of Employment Insurance to the Department of Labor, hangs in the balance. Both plans will automatically become effective at the end of this week, unless the Senate rejects them in advance of the deadline, in accordance with recommendations of its Expenditures Committee. Failure to approve these important plans, as President Truman warned in his letter to Vice President Barkley, would imperil the rest of the reorganization program. "Every special interest group concerned with the operation of the Government," the President said, "will be encouraged to try to block further steps toward efficiency and economy." He also pointed out that former President Hoover shares his concern, thereby undercutting the argument that the failure to include all the Hoover Commission's recommendations for reorganization of the Federal Security Agency is a valid reason for rejecting Plan No. 1.

In our opinion there is no question that both plans would effect more efficient and economical administration of the agencies concerned. However, opposition will not be disarmed by stressing their merits. Critics fear that the establishment of a Department of Welfare would result in introduction of compulsory health insurance and that health functions would be assigned to the new department under the direction of the present head of the Federal Security Agency. As a Cabinet member, it is claimed, that official will have a great deal of influence over decisions as to the placement of health, hospitalization and related governmental activities. Opposition to the shift of the employment services and unemployment compensation to the Department of Labor is likewise motivated by fear of the department, which is said to be biased in favor of labor.

If the Senate were to act on the basis of such fears, the rest of the Hoover program would have hard sledding. For every proposal for strengthening the Government organization is necessarily based on the assumption that the officeholders who are responsible for execution of the reforms are trustworthy and reasonably competent. If Congress turns down reforms that experts regard as essential simply to keep officials "in their place," wasteful and obsolescent organizational patterns cannot be discarded. Changes involve risk-taking and experimentation.

Besides reiterating arguments in favor of the jeopardized reorganization plans, the President assured the Senate that they would not change governmental policies with respect to employment or health matters. It is absurd, as he said, to jump to the conclusion that the creation of a Department of Welfare would limit the freedom of Congress to determine national health policies. He also pointed out that the Department of Labor administered the employment services of the Bureau of Employment Security quite successfully and without bias for a number of years. In thus seeking to dissipate what he referred to as imaginary difficulties, the President wisely avoided discussion of the question as to ultimate disposition of health services. The immediately important objective is acceptance of the programs now under consideration so as to pave the way for introduction of other equally important organizational reforms.

FOOLISH ARE THE YOUNG

The young man talks like the flight of birds—
Updraft, downdraft
Aimless in the wind—;
But the old man carefully weighs his words,
And uses them when
The air is thinned.

The young man rushes the city's wall
Ruthlessly, wildly—
And is stopped at the gate;
But the old man sees that the stones stand tall,
And pitches his tent
Outside to wait.

The young man charges with gestures grand—
But his brittle lance breaks in his hard-fisted hand,
And the wall stands strong. In his blind chagrin
He sees not the old man walking within.

Matter of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Weary Men, Timid Men

LONDON.—It is now entirely possible that the collapse of Britain as a great world power will take place within the next 12 to 18 months. That is the real meaning of all the figures, all the talk about sterling balances and trade deficits. If this is allowed to happen, plans for halting Soviet expansion in the Far East, or for placing Western Europe in a position of defense, will become sheer blithering nonsense, simply because a strong Britain is the essential ingredient of all such plans. If it is allowed to happen, the preconditions for a third world war will have been met. It cannot be allowed to happen.

Yet it is being allowed to happen. It is being allowed to happen because the threat of collapse is being met with melancholy weariness on this side of the ocean, and with scolding timidity on the other.

The first thing to understand about the men who are governing England is that they are unutterably weary. Sir Stafford Cripps is in a Swiss sanatorium. Ernest Bevin has had to go to the south of France to rest. Herbert Morrison has been unwell for a long time. Prime Minister Clement Attlee, on whom the whole burden has now fallen, is being driven to the point of exhaustion. And on the faces of the lesser officials who are trying to grapple with the British crisis you can read a gray fatigue.

THIS ACHING WEARINESS in the midst of towering trouble has led to something like paralysis. As one British official said to this reporter, "If anything is really to be done, the initiative has got to come from you." The kind of initiative the United States is taking was typified by the recent visit to London of Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder.

Snyder arrived purse-lipped, prepared to scold. He scolded, and left, more purse-lipped than before. Precisely nothing was accomplished. Where a bold, imaginative attempt to reverse the process which is leading to disaster is required, Snyder and the others who think like him content themselves with carping at the Socialist government for being a Socialist government.

It may be true that the conflict between Socialist doctrine and the harsh realities of the British postwar position has contributed something to the paralysis. The hard fact is that if Britain is to compete in the world markets the British standard of living must fall. This fact is difficult for a Socialist government to face—it would be difficult for any government to face. Yet it is demonstrably true that, Socialist or not, the British recovery effort has been greater than that of any Continental country. And the way the reduced income of the British is distributed within Britain is the business of the British, not of the United States.

WHAT IS VERY much the business of the United States is to give the British confidence that the crisis through which they now must pass will not be permitted under any circumstances to go so far that the British economy collapses and British world power disintegrates. For the British crisis is as much as anything a crisis of confidence, confidence in the future of the British pound, in the future of England itself.

Confidence will not be restored by carping, nor by the kind of timid horror displayed by Snyder at any suggestion for action of which his more conservative banking friends might not approve. It is certainly in part because of their foreknowledge of Snyder's reaction that Cripps and Bevin, when they go to Washington next month, are likely to have in their briefcases only the most modest and tentative plans for dealing with a crisis which is neither modest nor tentative.

They are expected to ask for some arrangement for continued American sctockpiling of rubber and tin at agreed prices, and for increased American capital investment in the sterling area. They may also propose multilateral devaluation of the "soft" currencies, although, because it would reduce living standards at home, Cripps hates the very word "devaluation."

This sort of thing, if Snyder will go even so far, should help. The drop in Malayan rubber and tin exports has hit the British harder than the drop in exports to the United States from Britain itself. American capital is not getting abroad—which means simply that the world's greatest capitalist and creditor nation is not acting like a capitalist and creditor nation. Finally, some sort of devaluation of the pound is sooner or later inevitable, if only because currency is a slippery thing, and the pound cannot be maintained indefinitely at an artificial level.

THIS SORT of paring at the fringes of the problem might conceivably be enough to keep the crisis within manageable limits. Surely it is essential at least to have in reserve the kind of bold action on a big scale necessary to restore the free world's confidence in itself. This sort of planning is in fact going forward, both in London and Washington. But it is going forward half-heartedly, largely because everyone knows that Snyder, and the conservative banking circles he represents, would react with pink-faced horror at any suggestion that the American gold hoard be put to some useful purpose, for example, or that anything similarly unconventional be done. So, while the timid Snyder scolds, while the weary Cripps rests in his sanatorium, disaster inches nearer, inexorably, day by day.

"Privacy In The Home"

Your August 10 editorial, "Privacy in the Home," says "the rudiments of fair play seem to us to demand that a warrant be sought before a citizen is punished for refusing to admit a health inspector." No legislative or judicial process is known to exist in the District of Columbia whereby a warrant may be obtained for such a purpose.

The reply may be made that Congress could authorize such warrants if it saw fit. That is true. On the other hand, let us see what would happen if that authority were granted. The Health Department has recently announced it will start a block clean-up campaign, similar to the one being so successfully conducted in Baltimore. A campaign of this sort implies inspection of every house in the block, whether anyone has prior knowledge of sanitary violations existing therein or not. Should any of those residents object to inspection, no one could swear out a warrant because he could not of his own knowledge say a violation did exist prior to inspection.

To quote again from the editorial, ". . . the great majority of citizens will probably continue to admit health inspectors voluntarily . . ." Do you really think that slum landlords, unwilling as they have proved themselves to make repairs, would hesitate to direct their tenants to refuse entry to a health inspector?

This ruling has serious implications for the very concept of public health work. Admittedly the rights of privacy guaranteed the individual by the Constitution must not be infringed—unless the public interest demands it. For 160 years the public interest has demanded governmental measures to prevent the spread of disease. Do we now propose to throw that program overboard?

DAR Ammunition

While the DAR patriots executive committee is busy resisting the trend toward world federation by looking for Communists among the United World Federalist and the Atlantic Union Committee, there is further important snooping for them to do. What, for example, became of that Cominform clique known to the public only as the President's Air Policy Commission? This body announced in January, 1948, that "the United States will be secure in an absolute sense only if the institution of war itself is abolished under a regime of law. We will not be rid of war until the nations arrive at the agreement to live together in peace and to this end give to the United Nations organization the legal and physical powers under a regime of law to keep the peace."

Then there was that group of fellow travelers, the President's Advisory Commission on Universal Military Training, caught red-handed in June, 1947, with this statement: "Everything points inescapably to the conclusion that there is no real security for this country or any other country unless war is abolished through the establishment of a reign of law among nations."

Incidentally, the DAR might ferret out Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Communist ghost-writer who slipped the following passage into Crusade in Europe: "During the war it was demonstrated that international unity of purpose and execution could be obtained without jeopardy to any nation's independence, if all were willing to pool a portion of their authority in a single headquarters with power to enforce their decision. In the formation of the new United Nations and of the Allied Organization for the control of Germany, this lesson had not yet been accepted. Its application would have meant some form of limited federated world government, which while conforming to the Western Allies' battle-front experience as providing the only sure way to success, was politically inacceptable to any of the great nations concerned."

"Mission To Norway"

After reading Richard L. Coe's July 19 article as well as your August 9 editional on the Howard University Player's forthcoming trip to Norway, I was under the impression that the Norwegian government had invited the Howard players to come to Norway strictly as an international cultural gesture of goodwill.

On August 9, I read Drew Pearson's column in which he described the players as a theatrical company of Negro actors who will tour the Scandinavian countries, trailing Paul Robeson to offset his Communist sponsored barnstorming, and in Mr. Pearson's words, "thus demonstrate that all American Negroes aren't downtrodden."

I dropped over to my Alma Mater and had a chat with some of the actors, and it seems that Mr. Pearson has missed the boat. First, the Howard players are not, and have no intention of, trailing Mr. Robeson. Second, the offer to come to Norway was made by the Norwegian Embassy long before Mr. Robeson's political views became headline gossip.

Poll Tax

I should like to enlighten Mr. Jennings K. Owen whose letter on the poll tax appeared August 6.

By definition a poll tax is a levy of so much per head, usually on males; however, the general connotation and the subject of Mr. Owens' letter includes "as a qualification for voting." It grew out of the Granger movement and the Populist activity in the last decade of the nineteenth century, the first act containing such a restriction having been passed in Florida in 1889, and its purpose was to keep the Negroes in the South from voting, although as many white people have been disfranchised by this device.

Mr. Owens is in error when he says that more than half of the poll tax States are not Southern, for actually the Northern-most State of the seven retaining this tax as a qualification for voting, is Virginia.

Obviously the result of this economic discrimination is rule of 100 per cent of the State's people by a few men who honestly represent perhaps 10 per cent. The fact that the money collected may be put to good use is completely irrelevant to the question, and is in fact, only an attempt to prove that the end justifies the means. The real point is that if representative democracy means anything, it means above all (1) the inherent right of every citizen to vote, regardless of his birth or status in society—social, economic or political, and (2) rule by majority decision.

Home Rule Poll

Mr. Frederick Siddons asks, in his August 9 letter, whether Dr. Gallup would consider it necessary to question the citizens of the Coastal States on a change in the form of government of a Middle West city. He abandons this question immediately, evidently implying that because such a poll would be quite unreasonable the converse is also true and the rest of the Nation should not be questioned about the District. Such a conclusion is in no way justified by the facts.

Somewhat later he states, ". . . an amendment to the Constitution is necessary to give the people of the District of Columbia real home rule."

The question that immediately presents itself is: What could be of more concern to the people of our Nation as a whole than an effort to amend the Constitution? The answer is self-evident, so the people of the country really do have an interest in District affairs and should be questioned in regard to them on matters of great concern.

Only by admitting that a constitutional amendment is unnecessary in the present case can Mr. Siddons make even a weak case against Dr. Gallup. But in doing so he would weaken another prop of the jerry-built argument against home rule.

Protestant School Aid

In his latest tirade, Bishop Oxnam ignored the published statement of what Cardinal Spellman said he wants and anticipated the Cardinal's desires thus: "What he wants is the support of parochial schools by taxes levied on all the people. In a word, he seeks public funds for sectarian education."

Recently, I read an editorial from the Raleigh (N. C.) News & Observer that, in part, said this:

"It is a fact, however, that a private school for Methodist orphans is operated at the Methodist orphanage here as a part of and at the expense of the Raleigh city school system which draws its funds from State and local taxes . . .

"Certainly any churchmen who mean to stand by the doctrine of the separation of church and state should insist that the doctrine have the same meaning in Protestant North Carolina as in Catholic Massachusetts."

I respectfully direct this Raleigh situation to the attention of Bishop Oxnam, vice-president of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State. The organization was described in The Washington Post as one which has vigorously opposed use of Federal funds for any service to private or parochial schools.

Some Consolation

You know, we should not moan over temperatures of 92, 94 and 96 with high humidity.

My experiences in the far West with 92's, 94's and 96's with their accompanying low humidity (below 19 per cent) were fraught with fear—fear that that acrid odor in the air would foretell another dash to pack one's precious belongings or to ply the garden hose desperately on a tinder dry roof with flaming bits of fir and salal falling about.

The breeze changes. Now it's from the west. You are told later if the easterly breeze had held, the town would have gone, and that the crown fire carried on the wind from the east traveled at the rate of a mile a minute.

Hot—sweaty—sticky? Yes—but no fear.

Struggles Mark India's 2d Birthday

Budget Balanced, Pakistan Faces Future Hopefully

Karachi, Pakistan, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The 80 million people of Pakistan, youngest of the Moslem states, will celebrate the second anniversary of their independence Monday, confident in the knowledge that the country has weathered its initial storms.

Dire predictions were made about Pakistan's future when it was set free by the British, along with its sister nation, India, August 15, 1947. The weaker, less politically developed and economically poorer of the two nations, Pakistan was expected to flounder helplessly for years, perhaps collapse.

Today, Pakistan has a balanced budget and a favorable balance of trade. The country has survived the loss of its founder-leader, and first governor-general, Mohamed Ali Jinnah, and has rallied around its chief disciple, Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

Pakistan still has a long road to travel to economic prosperity, but is attacking the problem with determination. Agricultural development plans include reclamation of large areas through irrigation and other long-range projects to boost food production.

Pakistan has had to grapple with the problem of rehabilitating seven million refugees who migrated from India immediately following the partition of India. Most of them have been settled on the land. Thousands are still without homes.

Pakistan's relations with India continue strained. First, the Punjab riots following partition, later the Indian absorption of the princely states of Junagadh and Hyderabad, and the fighting in Kashmir, have kept relations tense.

An uneasy peace under a United Nations commission has silenced the guns in Kashmir, but Pakistan leaders have publicly stated they never will give up the province.

Economic, Political Problems Beset Gandhi's Country

New Delhi, India, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The Dominion of India celebrates its second birthday Monday, but the multitude of problems that beset the young nation lend a sober undercurrent to the rejoicing.

India today is troubled by problems unforeseen by the wildly jubilant mobs that clogged New Delhi streets when Britain's rule came to an end August 15, 1947.

They began with the Punjab massacres and the assassination of Mohandas K. Gandhi, "the father of the nation." In the wake of these two violent jolts has come an unhealthy sag in national finances, rising prices, new political discontent. In the background looms the threat of increasing Communist domination of the masses.

In two years, India has spent nearly half of its foreign currency reserves—money that represent's the infant government's buying power abroad. Out of some $4,400,000,000 held in reserve in 1947, not more than $2,444,000,000 is left. The drain on sterling reserves seems certain to continue.

The cost of living has risen 370 per cent above the 1939 level, and seems likely to go higher.

Despite Gandhi's creed of "nonviolence," the Indian army has undertaken four campaigns during two years—in the princely states of Junagadh, Hyderabad and Kashmir, and the semi-independent Himalayan state of Sikkim.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's government is struggling to solve the nation's many problems before they breed mass discontent. An agricultural campaign has been launched to end food imports by 1951. Huge factories are being built to produce locomotives, steel, fertilizer and other essential goods. Vast hydroelectric projects are under construction.

India, which is scheduled to change from a British dominion to an independent republic early next year, wants foreign capital and technical assistance to help with these plans, but investors have been cool so far.

Czech Censorship Off, But Reporting Still Is Made Difficult

(Correspondent A. I. Goldberg of the Associated Press has returned to the United States for home leave after serving as Associated Press chief of bureau in Czechoslovakia. He tells how foreign correspondents in Prague are under constant pressure from officials, even though there is no direct censorship on dispatches to the United States.—Editor's Note.)

By A. I. Goldberg

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—The growing crisis in Czechoslovakia has been reported by foreign newsmen this summer without direct censorship—but indirect pressures have made the job difficult.

The man who abolished censorship in Czechoslovakia immediately after victory in Europe—Dr. Vlado Clementis, Foreign Minister—told this correspondent early in July that direct censorship was not contemplated.

But with newspapers and radio controlled so that only the government viewpoint can be published, and with Czechoslovaks more fearful than ever to talk with foreign reporters because the press and radio keep up a din about them being liars and spies, it has been harder than ever to get a balanced picture.

An example was afforded when Slovaks stoned a bus full of Czechs traveling in Slovakia. The Associated Press reported the incident. Some time afterward, officials in the press department of the Foreign Ministry called in the Associated Press correspondent, criticized the tone of several dispatches, and demanded to know the source of the stoning story.

When told victims of the stoning had described it, the officials laid down this principle:

"Using those people as reporters is illegal because it would be using stories from the underground, and making illegal use of people against the state."

Some key officials make no secret of their feeling that foreign reporters should wait for official handouts and statements, and that only such viewpoints should be presented.

Generally, however, the official line is that there is no censorship. It is a word that they are sensitive to. And although "thought control" is what they would like to see, they have not gone as far as Romania in barring foreign newsmen, or as far as Russia in maintaining censorship.

The Czechoslovak situation has its counterparts in Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia: no direct censorship, but secrecy at the source and discouragement of contacts with nationals of the country.

Next to Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Poland have the greatest number of foreign newsmen. Bulgaria has permitted some to come in, but does not encourage them.

Czechoslovak government officials did not conceal their irritation over some of the reporting of the conflict with the Catholic Church, especially the fact that the explanations of Archbishop Josef Beran fell into the hands of the foreign newsmen, who obtained copies of his numerous letters to the clergy and several pastoral letters.

The government could have sat on the church lid much tighter but for that fact. For more than a week after the situation exploded in late May, there was no word about it in the Czechoslovak press. But the reports of the foreign reporters seeped back from outside and forced the government into explanations.

By what the government charged and denied in its statements, thinking Czechoslovaks were able to determine what the church stand must be.

Set in the Communist mold, the press and radio are one continuous harangue along the party line. The Czechoslovak public is told officially when and what the government leaders want it to know—but it learns much from the information that blasts back by radio and that is circulated by word of mouth.

There is absolute secrecy on industrial and financial figures that might give a definite clue to the state of the Czechoslovak economy, especially on figures that reflect on the economy and trade practices of Soviet Russia.

In the church controversy, officials were annoyed that Archbishop Beran was able to state his case to the world. Foreign newsmen were under constant surveillance. At least one newsman—a Swiss—found a recording device in his hotel room. Newsmen were flatly asked to tell their news sources.

Now is not the time to tell how contact was maintained for some time with Archbishop Beran in his palace prison.

Human Rights Stand of U. N. Hailed as Historic Milestone

By The Associated Press

Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, dean of the Lutheran Theological Seminary's graduate school, said yesterday the United Nations declaration on human rights and freedom may well become a "milestone in history."

His statement was made in a pamphlet, "Freedom's Charter," which was published by the Foreign Policy Association.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who helped draft the declaration, said in an introducton that its place in history will depend in large measure on its understanding by people of all nations.

"If they know it well enough," she wrote, "They will strive to attain some of the rights and freedoms set forth in it, and that effort on their part is what will make it of value in clarifying what was meant in the (U. N.) charter in the reference to human rights and fundamental freedoms."

Nolde said the declaration now relies on "moral compulsion" and suggested four steps to make certain that it will be put into practice.

A binding international agreement to protect human rights, regardless of claims for "unrestrained national sovereignty."

World-wide understanding of its content and meaning since no document, of itself, can be effective "until it lives in the hearts and minds of men."

"We should study our own communities frankly to see where human rights are being violated and then determine what steps we should take to bring practice into conformity with the declaration."

Bring world opinion to bear in promoting "the observance of human rights everywhere as a contribution toward world peace with order and justice."

"No nation is strong enough consistently to flout such power."

Walter Lippmann is on vacation. His column, "Today and Tomorrow," will be resumed on his return.

Sen. George Asks Immediate Cut in Taxes as Business Aid

By the United Press

Senate George (D., Ga.), top-ranking Senate tax spokesman, yesterday called for an "immediate" reduction in taxes to stimulate business and expand the Nation's economy.

He proposed a six-point reduction program, including special deductions for earned income, dividends, "creative talent" groups and long-term research, new tax rules for businessmen who are paying off mortgages on their equipment, and elimination or reduction in wartime excise rates.

George, chairman of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, offered his plan for a "constantly expanding economy" in a radio interview with Commentator Charles Parmer, station WPIK, Alexandria.

He said that in a period of recession, the best way to meet the "legitimate" costs of government without running into the red is not to increase taxes but to lower them as a stimulus to more business activity.

"I believe also that a constantly expanding economy will make it possible for us systematically to reduce our taxes and to systematically apply payments upon the Nation's debt, which should not be left out of mind," he said.

Along with tax cuts, he said Government spending must be "stripped of waste" at home and abroad, and foreign spending must be curbed—"that is, adjusted to a minimum expenditure . . ."

President Truman already has given up the idea of a tax increase in the light of the business recession, but he also has ruled out any tax cuts this year. There is no chance of a cut this year, but George's proposals could lead to such a drive next year.

Potato Price Props Costly

Fort Kent, $150,000 for half their crop.

The 1940 census fixed Aroostook County's population at 85,000. Wartime growth plus other attractions has raised this to an estimated 100,000 today. One of the greatest of these other attractions is digging potatoes, which corresponds in financial return to digging gold in the Homestake Lode.

In the year ending June 30 the Commodity Credit Corp. bought $67,082,900 worth of the 1948 crop potatoes, virtually all in this one county.

Thus the Government paid about 40 cents for every man, woman and child in the 48 States into this one northern Maine county to hold up the price of potatoes. Those payments amounted to about $670 for every person in the county.

60 Pct. of Entire Crop

The Government bought 25,612,500 100-pound sacks or about 60 per cent of the entire crop.

Of the 5213 commercial potato growers (those growing 3 acres or more) 4503 qualified for price support. To qualify they had to pay by August 1, one cent for each 100 pounds on which they wanted price support.

The average Government payment to each potato farm in the State eligible for price support was just a trifle less than $15,000.

The scheme was designed to hold up potato prices. It worked.

In June the average retail price of potatoes in the United States, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, reached the highest peacetime figure known. 93.6 cents a peck or more than 6 cents a pound.

Aroostook County is about as far north as you can get without stepping into Canada. Canada surrounds it on three sides. It has a total acreage of 4,209,053 but only 193,000 were planted last year in potatoes.

The take won't be as great this year.

First, Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan dropped the price support level from last year's 90 per cent of parity to 60 per cent this year.

Acreage Cut 23½ Per Cent

Second, Maine growers have voted marketing agreements and acreage restrictions. This year the acreage was cut 23½ per cent below last year or from 193,000 to 151,000 acres.

But the farmers, although obeying the acreage allotments, are squeezing a little. Potatoes are being planted in rows about seven inches apart instead of 12, 14 and 16 as in the old days.

Fertilizer is used either in greater volume or greater strength. Most growers estimate that they are using 175 pounds of fertilizer for every 100 pounds used a few years ago.

The biggest boon to high yields, several told this reporter, has been DDT. This pest killer, originally used to kill the old fashioned potato bug, has been death to the small aphids. The result in yields has been amazing.

A number of farmers will harvest 550 bushels an acre this year barring any unforseen calamity in the next six weeks to two months. Only blight or early frost or some other act of God can keep this county from having the biggest yield per acre it ever knew. On August 1, the average yield in Maine was officially estimated at 400 bushels per acre, up from 380 last year—the previous high record. Although the planted acreage has been cut 23⅓ per cent, the total harvest may be only 10 to 12 per cent below last year.

Bad Weather Hurts

Although crop prospects here are for a new record crop, bad weather elsewhere, particularly a drought on Long Island, in New Jersey, etc., has cut down the national yield. Perhaps the surplus will be only about half that of last year or about 40 million hundredweight. That's about 66 million bushels.

The support price will average about $1.80 per hundredweight this year as against $2.92 last year. That will mean 72 million dollars this year compared with about 200 million last year. Added are freight and distribution costs which last year brought the total cost of the potato program to more than 225 million. That will mean a total cost this year of almost 100 million dollars. Some people still have a wholesome respect for 100 million dollars.

The amazing thing is that Congress has held to the potato program although it has been warned time and again against it. Not only did former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson repeatedly protest but his successor, Brannan, also sounded the warnings. The potato industry itself urged that price supports be cut. But Congress held fast. Even as late as two weeks ago the House, under leadership of Representative Albert Gore of Tennessee, voted to keep supports.

To Get Out Vote

Democrats Recommend Local Clubs

By the United Press

The Democratic National Committee said yesterday that elbow grease, shoe leather and a little cash can cement a party victory in the 1950 congressional elections.

The current issue of Capital Comment, its weekly publication, suggested that Democratic clubs be organized in every county to step up registration of voters.

"A large vote means Democratic victory," it said. "Registration is the key to victory in 1950."

The committee cited a recent test in Somerset County, Pa., traditionally a Republican stronghold, as example of "what can be done."

An intensive, 10-week registration drive, it said, wiped out a Republican lead of 1210 registrations and put the Democrats on top with a 323-vote edge.

It said Democratic clubs, organized in each registration area, drew up a list of all unregistered voters by streets and house numbers and then broke them down into working assignments for interviews by individual members.

Club officials handled all local publicity, enlisting the aid of newspapers to increase interest and getting spot radio announcements.

"These Democratic Clubs," the committee said, "supplied the workers who supplied the elbow grease and shoe leather that made the tests successful."

It said the total cost was $200—to pay for gasoline to drive registrants to the registration office. This averaged out to 10 cents each for the newly registered voters, it added.

The committee said the achievement was more remarkable because all of the county commissioners were Republicans and "gave little aid or comfort to this drive." The commissioners "opened few special registration booths, making it more difficult for the results to be attained," it commented.

Atlanta, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—States' Rights Democrats tonight told national party officials, in effect, 'You go your way and we'll go ours."

Some States' Righters used even stronger words when they learned National Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath had not invited Mississippi and Louisiana members to a committee meeting.

Horace Wilkinson of Birmingham, a leader in the Alabama States' Rights movement, said, "We have nothing in common with McGrath and his gang . . . as far as I am concerned we are better off by following a hands-off policy with McGrath's crowd."

Senator McGrath, who will resign as national chairman August 24, called the committee together to elect his successor. His call read the existing Democratic organizations in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and South Carolina out of the national party.

No Statement Issued

Delegates from these States walked out of the National Convention last fall in protest of President Truman's civil rights program. They formed their own party.

State's Rights leaders assembled in a special meeting at Mobile, Ala., yesterday to discuss the McGrath incident. They broke up last night without issuing a statement.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, who ran for President on the party's ticket, declined comment.

Louisiana's National Committeeman, W. H. (Little Eva) Talbot, said he was "amazed" at having been slighted by McGrath.

"It's strange that they would welcome Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and his left-wing Americans for Democratic Action into the fold, and then read us out," he said.

Louisiana's Committeewoman, Miss Mary Evelyn Dickerson, said the whole thing was "very confused."

"Of Little Moment"

Preston Parks, who cast Tennessee's lone State Rights electoral vote, said McGrath's action made him believe "even stronger in the principles for which States' Righters stand."

State Senator R. M. Kennedy said, "It is of little moment to South Carolinians who is invited to attend a Truman-Humphrey gathering in Washington."

He said Democratic Party officials were "obnoxious" because they favor "reenactment of Reconstruction in the South."

Former Gov. Frank Dixon of Alabama added that States' Righters in his State were "not in the least bit surprised or worried."

Governor Thurmond made a speech in Mobile calling for a renewal of efforts to halt the "militant socialistic trend" of the Administration.

Larrimore Found Poor As Carmen

By Paul Hume

If I had been Don Jose last night, Carmen would have been killed in Act two.

Her acting during the big tenor aria in Act Two and her conduct during the Micaela-Jose duet in Act Three marked Martha Larrimore as quite unfit to play the title role of Bizet's great opera.

It was a repeat performance of the opera by the San Carlo Company, and their last appearance of the season at the Watergate.

Miss Larrimore replaced Winifred Heidt from the previous performanee while Deanna de Sanctos sang Frasquita and John Lawler was the Zuniga. Otherwise the cast was the same as on last Monday night.

In both Merimee's book and Bizet's libretto, Carmen is sexy, common, and a perpetual hussy. But she should not be disgusting. Miss Larrimore in her motions, facial gestures, walk, and general attitude came very close to being just that. She simply does not understand the role at all. Her singing and French enunciation were for the most part as unsatisfactory.

For one great singer, Mina Cravi, and for the pleasure 10 nights of opera the San Carlans have given us, Washington is truly appreciative.

Cripple Loses Wheel Chair In Auto Crash

A crippled Veterans Administration woman employe who hasn't walked in 14 years had considered herself pretty lucky despite her troubles—up to this weekend.

She considered herself lucky for having a job paying her about $60 a week, a wheel-chair, and a good friend with whom she lives and drives to work, wheelchair and all.

Besides that, Miss Irene Donohue of the Meridian Hill Hotel, who was crippled by polio and multiple sclerosis in 1935, had a weekly pleasure ride in her friend's car.

Then, last weekend's ride, which was to be a special one to Baltimore to celebrate the birthday of her friend, Miss Muriel Gernand, turned into disaster. On their way to Miller's Restaurant in Baltimore Saturday afternoon, Miss Gernand stopped for a traffic light in Arbutus, Md.

There was a crash as another motorist came up from behind and failed to stop for the light. Miss Gernand's car was smashed, and so was the wheelchair. Even then, the wheelchair kept the crippled woman from being incapacitated, for police said its position behind the front seat undoubtedly saved the women from serious injury.

Considerbly shaken up and black and blue from the impact, Miss Donohue tried to figure out yesterday how she would find another chair to get to her job when she is able to work again.

One on the Aisle—

Ethel Barrymore Is 70 Years Young

By Richard L. Coe

TODAY IS ETHEL BARRYMORE'S seventieth birthday and an international broadcast will be honoring the actress over the ABC network tonight at 11 o'clock.

True to the Washington tradition of going its own sweet way, WMAL won't air the special show until a rebroadcast tomorrow night at 8. At least that's the set-up at this writing, though I'm accepting no responsibility for any change in the radio world.

Miss Ethel has spent many, many weeks in Washington and, if you don't drop your popcorn, you can even catch a glimpse of her this week on the Palace screen in "The Great Sinner."

Miss Ethel is one of the exceptions to the American habit of ignoring former idols. Though she officially celebrated her fortieth anniversary on the stage in 1941, her biographical career in John Parker's invaluable "Who's Who in the Theater," states that she made her debut at New York's Empire in "The Rivals" in 1894—55 years ago.

Through the years this daughter of Matinee Idol Maurice Barrymore and Georgie Drek, a celebrated actress, has had a carer unrivalled in the American theater. She's played a varity of roles—Ophelia to Scarlet Sister Mary—that makes other actresses look like one-shot Annies.

But it's in her zest for living that Queen Ethel's seventieth birthday finds her working, relishing the ballgames, being quoted for her tart observations and still looking so striking you'd turn around in the street for a second look, though you mightn't know who she was.

She lives with her son, Samuel Colt, in a small house overlooking the Pacific. Sam is the first-born of her only marriage—to Russell Griswold Colt of the Connecticut arms family. There were two other children, John Drew Colt, who worked for a time in his father's factory, and Ethel Colt, who adopted the Barrymore name for a brief theatrical career. Miss Barrymore's marriage in 1909 lasted 13 years, but only a few years ago she celebrated her birthday with her former husband.

At Our Belasco

The stories about Ethel are legion. One Saturday afternoon at our own Belasco Theater (now not a theater!) she was to play Lady Teazle in "The School for Scandal." The cast was in readiness. But Miss Barrymore wasn't to be found. The manager was frantic. She'd never missed a performance. Then a stage hand, moving a flat, came across the star, sleeping soundly on an eighteenth century sofa. She'd been there since the night before when, after the final curtain, she'd just curled up for a nap.

In the same play she once gave a performance in Denver that rocked the land's drama fans. One critic who was there described it as a "more-than-slightly-tipsy" Lady Teazle.

Though she forcefully retired in 1936, there's nothing like a good role for an actress and after she'd taught for a time, she welcomed the role of Miss Moffat in "The Corn Is Green," in this, for its fourth season, she swept across the land in a series of 72 one-night stands, a trick to be followed this season by her great admirer, Tallulah Bankhead who'll lope through the one-nighters in "Private Lives." Only last spring Tallulah wrote a magazine yarn about Ethel's baseball mania.

"That's All There Is"

Long identified with her has been one line: "That's all there is. There isn't any more." This was spoken in a play called "Sunday," in 1907. Actually the line wasn't in the play at all, as she explained not long ago.

"I had to read a letter in the play and then make an exit. It didn't come off right, so I spoke to Mo. Frohman about it. 'Well, say anything you want and get off,' he answered. So that's what I did and that's where that line got started.

In those days of "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," Ibsen, Shakespeare, Fitch, Barrie and Maughm, Miss Barrymore had a blonde, dramatic beauty. She had a throbbing voice, used her hands eloquently, and received the nickname of "The Typical American Girl."

Nowadays she's inclined to remind film fans of Brother Lionel, which is a matter she may well like to leave alone. Though they live only 40 miles apart, they seldom see each other: they differ sharply on politics. Ethel was a vociferous FDR Democrat.

About Brother John she's proudly sentimental. The night he died in 1942 she was playing in Boston, but went on with the show. "It was the best tribute I could give him."

Ethel's never made my bones about loving the stage, from the days when she understudied Elsie de Wolfe, now Lady Mendl of Hollywood and Paris, to the week she played vaudeville down at the Warner. Her vehicle then, as always in her two-a-day, four-a-day, was Barrie's one-act comedy, "The 12-Pound Look."

About the art of acting, Ethel once put it in a nutshell:

"Acting is the art of conveying emotion based largely on personality. If you can get your audience to believe in you, you are an artist. And that is as old as the hills."

So, Miss Barrymore in California, may Washington join the parade in congratulating you on those fruitful, inspiring years? A proud birthday, Queen Ethel.

Unwed Mothers Get Assistance

pregnant.

In time, it wasn't hard for Marietta to talk to the social worker. Then the story came out.

She had met J. H. at the home of a friend. He was an "extra man." Her own date was a dismal flop—one of those nightmare-type lads who sit and grin stupidly at you; step on your toes with squeaky shoes when you dance with 'em, and push you into a mudhole trying to escort you around it.

J. H. had been amused, then helpful. He was an officer in the Navy. Marietta was a Government girl. They found things to talk about together.

When the evening was over, J. H. took her home. She didn't see her "goopy" date again. But J. H. did call her, and take her to the movies. They became good friends. He told her he was married, but that his wife was divorcing him.

To Be Married

They fell in love—or what Marietta thought was love, anyhow. The divorce was months off. They were to be married as soon as it went through.

There are some standard phrases in the business of dealing with unwed mothers—U. M.—U. P.—The Plan—and "they jumped the gun." It seemed a couple is always "jumping the gun" into premarital relations, even when marriage itself is only weeks off.

That's what happened to Marietta and J. H. They "jumped the gun."

They reckoned without J. H.'s wife. She changed her mind. She asked her husband to come home—and he went. A reconciliation was effected.

They reckoned also without the consequences of their premarital experience. Marietta became pregnant.

That was her story. When the baby came, she decided she wanted to keep it. With the help of the agency, a home was found where the child could be boarded. Marietta got herself a job again. She became self-supporting.

A year passed, during which the agency almost lost sight of Marietta. Meanwhile, she had met another "young man."

Different Story

The story was different this time. He was unmarried. He wanted Marietta for his wife. She told him about her child. They both visited the child at its boarding home. He liked the child. They got married, and took the child into their home.

Marietta was happy now. There was only one thing that bothered her. She knew very little about her own parents. She knew that her mother had placed her with foster-parents when she was 5. But she didn't know why—whether illness, or financial responsibility, or what. She didn't know what her father had been like, or whether either of her parents was still alive.

Marietta's husband became interested in tracing her history. Laboriously, they went through records. Finally, they came up with the answer.

Marietta had been born in a maternity home. The same home where, 19 years later, she had given birth to a child. Her mother, too, had been a "U. M."

The social worker explains: "Everybody has an innate need to know where he comes from. It's a part of his life. If he doesn't know, he will always feel a little different—a little apart from society."

Marietta was lucky, the social worker thinks. For when she learned her own family background, she was on stable emotional ground.

The case of a "second generation" unwed mother is not too common in social case history. When one does come in, or when there is a possibility of a second generation "repeater," workers take every precaution they can to avoid it.

The other day Mrs. B. came into a social agency with her daughter. The agency knew Mrs. B.'s case well. She had had her child out of wedlock. Now the girl, Jane, was in her teens.

Her mother was worried about Jane. Mrs. B. felt a guilty sense of remembering whenever she looked at Jane, who was the "spit and image" of her natural father.

Her legitiamte husband, who knew the story, begrudged Jane anything but support—she wasn't his child. The couple quarreled frequently over Jane.

Sneaking Out

Now Mrs. B. had discovered that Jane was sneaking out to date a classmate at school. The first time she'd found this happening, Mrs. B. had slapped Jane.

"Corporal punishment" wasn't helping. What should she do?

"We told her," the social worker said, "To leave that girl alone. Let her live a normal life. And give her all the love and affection and feeling of being wanted she possibly could.

"Let her have dates, sure. Bring 'em home. Encourage her. We tried to make her remember she was doing to Jane exactly what her own mother had done to her.

"It may not work out. Some women just drive their daughters to be second generation U.M.s. We can try to block it, though, if Jane and her mother will help."

European Arms Bill Faces Fight

By the United Press

Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) voiced fear yesterday that there will be a stiff fight in his House Foreign Affairs Committee today to cut the Administration's arms-for-Europe fund by 30 per cent.

With that in mind, he called on his colleagues to "forget half-way measures and do the job right."

The committee is expected to approve the program, but Kee wants it to grant the full $1,450,000,000 requested by the Administration. He said he has "no particular objection" to a proposal to put up 60 per cent of the amount in cash and the rest in future contract authority. But he termed that "more or less camouflage" since Congress would have to provide the money later just the same.

Minds Changed

Backers of the proposed cut announced last week that they would give up their battle within the committee and try instead to make reductions on the House floor. But Kee's prediction indicated they have changed their minds.

Nine members were absent when the committee, by an 8 to 8 tie vote, refused to make a 50 per cent slash in the $1,160,000,000 portion of the arms fund earmarked for European members of the Atlantic Security Pact. No attempt has yet been made to reduce the remainder, slated to go to Greece, Turkey, Korea and the Philippines.

With the House due to get the arms bill this week, the joint Senate Foreign Relations-Armed Services committee will begin closed-door consideration of the issue Tuesday, with action possible by the weekend.

In the Senate, attention is focused on a proposal to bypass the Senate Appropriations committee by authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to make an 800 million dollar advance to get the program going this year. The rest could be made available in the form of contract authority. In this way no direct appropriations would be needed before next year.

Brings Protests

This plan, discussed by Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Chairman Connaly (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has met with angry protests from members of the Appropriations and Banking Committees who charged they are being by passed.

Meanwhile, Republican Senators Vandenberg (Mich.) and Dulles (N. Y.) plan to make public today their proposals to tie in the arms program with common defense plans to be drafted by the Atlantic Pact powers.

Both have complained that the Administration arms plan would duplicate the activities of the proposed council and defense committee to be set up under the pact.

In addition, Republican Representitive Vorys (Ohio) and Senator Knowland (Calif.) said they will continue to demand up to 200 million dollars in military aid for Nationalist China.

By the United Press

A small group of officials sat tight yesterday on one of the best-kept secrets this rumor-ridden capital ever has known: who wrote the anonymous document charging corruption in the Air Force's B-36 bomber purchase program?

Four persons presumably know the answer but they weren't talking. Others, including most members of the House Armed Services Committee which is investigating charges covered by the document, had to fall back on guesswork and rumors.

The most popular report among would-be insiders held that the document was the work of an aircraft manufacturer who bitterly resented the large share of plane procurement funds going to Consolidated-Vultee Corp., makers of the B-36.

Unwilling to Name Names

But no one who propagated that theory was willing to name names for the record, and most proponents admitted under questioning that they had little but circumstantial evidence to support their suspicion.

The allegations in the document closely paralleled the "ugly rumors" about the B-36 program which Representative Van Zandt (R., Pa.) outlined in a House speech last May and which touched off the current investigation. He said the rumors, "which I can not ignore," suggested political influence in the bomber purchases, and he linked the names of Floyd Odlum, head of Consolidated-Vultee, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, a former director of the corporation, and Secretary of Air W. Stuart Symington.

Symington last week challenged Van Zandt to throw off his cloak of "immunity" and repeat his remarks outside of Congress.

"Whitewash" Seen

Van Zandt retorted that Symington and Armed Services Committee Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) were teaming up to "whitewash" the affair.

Van Zandt has never said whether he has any idea who wrote the anonymous letter. The document was placed in the committee's record after it was received in the mail by Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.). Deane said he had no idea who it came from. It bore a Washington postmark but no return address.

Symington, however, told the committee he is certain that he knows who was behind the document. He passed his information on to Vinson and Committee Counsel Joseph B. Keenan in a confidential talk.

The committee is in recess until August 22.

Agency dispatch from Formosa said Nationalist planes again raided Shanghai and Nanking, concentrating on shipping along the Yangtze and Whangpoo Rivers. The reports said the planes sank the steamer Haihsin, an unidentified 200-ton vessel and a number of smaller craft. The dispatch said all planes returned, despite heavy antiaircraft fire.

A Canton dispatch reported three persons were killed and six injured when an arms depot exploded early today. It was the second such incident in a month. The reports gave no indication whether Communists were involved, but said one suspect was seized.

dent, and Matthew J. Connelly, a secretary to President Truman. General Vaughan described the units as factory rejects and again as experimental models with no commercial market value.

Committee interest in General Waitt is expected to extend beyond his secret memorandum, dictated in Mr. Hunt's office, on the abilities of his subordinates. Francis D. Flanagan, assistant committee counsel, has given the committee a detailed resume of Mr. Hunt's efforts to get a chemical corps contract for a client, the Deering-Milliken Research Trust of Greenwich, Conn.

Reading from Mr. Hunt's subpoenaed files, Mr. Flanagan advised the committee that the 5 per center had told officials of the Deering-Milliken firm last spring that General Waitt had agreed to give the company a research contract starting after July 1. From letters, Hunt indicated that General Waitt had gone out of his way to get the contract for Deering-Milliken to develop special gas-proof clothing.

State Chambers Hit Federal School Aid as Undesirable

By The Associated Press

The council of State chambers of commerce said yesterday that the "nasty business" of a religious controversy will be a constant threat if Congress votes any kind of Federal school aid.

The council cited the "bitter argument over the age-old question of separation of church and state" as having caused many Congressmen to reconsider whether school aid legislation should be passed.

The council, which claims 32 member chambers, attacked Federal school aid as undesirable. The religious controversy, centering around whether church schools should share in the Federal money in any way, may have dealt a death blow to the bill in this session.

The Senate has passed a 300-million-dollar a year bill which would allow the church schools to obtain transportation and similar incidental benefits if the individual States permitted. It has bogged down in the House.

The chamber council said in a statement that the religious argument is one of five "recent occurrences" which confirm why the legislation should not pass.

The other four, it said, as (1) the return to Federal deficit financing; (2) "Nation-wide improvement in State and local financing of schools," (3) "Marked improvement in ability of poorer States to pay for their own schools, and (4) "fear" of educators that the aid would lead to "Federalization" of schools.

gun. A struggle ensued, the Chicagoan recounted to police.

Finally, he said, he broke away, ran to a cab and was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment of scratches and bruises.

Park police put the engineer in a lineup with five other men. The Hockmans were asked to pick out the alleged rapist.

But Mr. and Mrs. Hockman declared that their assailant was not included in the men they viewed.

Here, the Chicagoan stepped from the line and pointing to the Hockmans asserted "those are the people."

A grilling of the Hockmans followed, police said, which resulted in the signed statements.

Police authorities will confer with members of the United States Attorney's office today on possible prosecution of the case. It was reported the victim was loathe to press charges.

Only one of the soldiers, both of whom were said to be stationed at Fort McNair, was picked up.

He was turned over to military police.

Park police detectives who participated in the investigation were: Porter Beale, William W. Gunter, Charles A. Mellott and Raymond I. Bartness. Policewoman Grace Judy also helped.

CAT planes were flown out of Shanghai before the Communists seized the city, but offices and equipment were abandoned at Hungjao airfield and downtown. Most of the property was seized in June.

McCloy Says Job Slate Set In Germany

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 14 (AP).—John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner for Germany, returned tonight from the United States, and said he has found the men to fill a half dozen key jobs when the military government is replaced.

The changeover will be made after the West German Federal Republic is set up. Ballots are being cast today for parliamentary members.

McCloy said he will not announce the names of his deputy and economic chief — the two biggest jobs to be filled—until he completes "the whole slate."

He declared enough American funds have been allocated to make west Berlin independent of the Russians for electric power, which they have controlled from the sources in their occupation zone.

Max Reimann, leader of the west German Communists, was defeated in his home district of Dortmund by a Social Democrat. But Reimann still could win a seat in Parliament under the proportional representation system.

There were a few street fights between rival political workers in several cities. Some die-hard former Nazis spread propaganda leaflets and shouted Hitlerite slogans. But, for the most part, the voting was orderly.

In bright, hot weather, the people strolled to the heavily policed polls in sober family groups, decked out in their Sunday best. Despite most speakers' campaign denunciations of occupation authorities, Allied Military Government officials joined German politicians in hailing the big vote as an encouraging sign for the new west German democracy.

When the machinery of the Republic is set up, Military Governors of the Western powers will be replaced by High Commissioners and west Germany will have a large measure of self-government.

Vitsi Pocket Wiped Out by Greek Troops

Athens, Greece, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—The Greek general staff announced today that guerilla resistance had been virtually wiped out in the Vitsi pocket near the Albanian border.

Government troops are now shifting their main attack against 5000 rebels in the Grammos Mountains, it was reported.

An official communique reported that as result of the new government drive, the "Vitsi as a guerilla fortress no longer exists."

It also reported the capture of Kroustalopiyi, a village on the escape route to Albania, trapping guerilla forces in the mountain range south of Little Lake Prespa, which washes the Greek, Albanian and Yugoslav borders.

The government said the campaign near the Albanian border was practically over, except for mopping-up operations in the Vitsi pocket.

A spokesman said the government was pressing the guerillas "on all fronts" in the Grammos.

Chambers Hurls Pirates to 4-0 Win Over St. Louis

St. Louis, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates solved Ace Hurler Howard Pollet for seven hits in five innings, while their own Cliff Chambers pitched a three-hit, 4 to 0, triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals today—dropping the Redbirds into second place in the National League race.

The Cardinals dropped to a full game behind the Brooklyn Dodgers as the Dodgers defeated the Boston Braves, 7 to 2, today.

The hits off Pollet included Ralph Kiner's thirty-first home run of the season. Fred Martin and Bill Reeder finished the hurling chore for the Cardinals.

Stan Rojek paved the way for the first Pirate tally in the third with a triple. Del Rice tried to tag Rojek on Tom Saffell's bunt, but Rice dropped the ball and Rojek scored. Saffell went to second on the play and scored on Wally Westlake's single.

Brooklyn Lands On Sain, Beats Boston by 7-2

Brooklyn, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers slapped Johnny Sain, one time ace of the Boston staff, with his thirteenth defeat of the season today beating the Brave righthander, 7-2.

Preacher Roe, Erv Palica and Joe Hatten toiled for the Dodgers with Hatten gaining the triumph.

Duke Snider belted two doubles and drove in three runs to lead the Dodger attack on Sain, who was removed with two away in the eighth.

Jimmy Russell put the Braves ahead in the first inning with a homer off Roe, his fifth. The Dodgers tied it on their half on a walk and the first of Snider's doubles. And they took the lead in the second, 2-1, on singles by Gil Hodges, Bill Cox, an infield out and Roe's fly.

The second of three singles by Cox and a double by Palica, second Dodger pitcher, made it 3-1, and the Braves cut the lead against Hatten in the seventh to 3-2 on a single by Ed Stanky and double by Elbie Fletcher.

However, Gene Hermanski's double scored two runs in the seventh after a single by Marv Rackley and walk to Snider.

Snider doubled home the final two runs in the eighth, connecting with the bases loaded.

Roe started and left in the third inning after complaining of dizziness and abdominal pains. Palica bowed out in the third with two out and the bases loaded. Hatten fell behind on Pinch-Hitters Jeff Heath, but Heath bounced into a force out on a 3-1 pitch.

Boston Only 4 Off Lead; Paul Calvert, Weik Routed

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Boston, Aug. 14.—The Nats moved Boston closer to the American League lead today.

Skillfully and peacefully, they succumbed to the Red Sox twice, 9-3 and 13-4, much to the enjoyment of 35,985 customers.

The two Boston victories coupled with the Yankee split of a twin bill with the Athletics leaves the Red Sox on four games out of the lead, the closest they've been since May 3.

Parnell Wins His 18th

The defeats brought the wretched record of the District Sad Sacks to 28 losses in their last 32 games.

There was some good pitching today, for a change, but Boston got all of it. Lefthander Mel Parnell cakewalked to his eighteenth success with a neat seven-hitter and righthander Jack Kramer, after a wobbly start, deposited his third triumph with another seven-hitter in the afterpiece.

The Washington pitching was about as bad as it's been for the last two months, which has been rather horrible, putting it mildly.

Paul Calvert, tossing his tenth straight and his thirteenth loss of the year, was nicked for 14 of Boston's 16 hits in the second game. Dick Weik, getting wilder by the hour, walked five, threw in a couple of singles and a wild pitch in less than two innings to lose his sixth game quickly and easily to start the dreary afternoon.

Both Red Sox victories were fashioned on big innings. They overcame a 1-0 Nat lead in the opener with a four-run splurge in the second inning and broke up what had been a fairly close game with a six-run sixth inning in the nightcap.

There were only two home runs hit all day and the Red Sox, natch, clubbed both of them. Dom Di Maggio, who waded into Washington pitching for six hits, conked his seventh in the opener while Vern Stephens plunked his thirty-first in the second game.

DiMaggio's found one on base, but Stephens came through with two aboard to raise his runs batted in total to 131.

Weik, who lost his fifth game in a one-inning stint Friday, improved today. It took him a third of an inning longer to be beaten. He loaded the bases on walks in the second inning, forced in one run with another walk and wild pitched another tally across.

The Red Sox then struck a couple of blows for themselves as Parnell singled in the third run and a long fly by Ted Williams brought in the fourth score of the second inning and also another Nats pitcher, Enrique Gonzales.

Nats Erratic

With the aid of three Nats' errors, he gave up five more runs before being relieved of his burdens by Dick Welteroth, who was also around in the second game.

Before departing, Weik batted the Nats into a temporary 1-0 lead in the second with a fly to left. That was quickly wiped out by the Sox in their half of the round and the Nats didn't strike pay dirt again against Parnell until the eighth when three singles and Stephens' error produced two more runs.

The Sox needed only one hit to get those back, however, and DiMaggio supplied it,—a shot into the netting atop the left field wall with Parnell aboard.

Stephens rapped Calvert for his homer with two away in the third and it boosted the Boston lead to 4-0. The Nats got two back against Kramer in the fourth on the first of two doubles by Buddy Lewis, two walks and Jake Early's infield hit.

Calvert Removed

Boston regained its four-run cushion with two more tallies in the fifth, but they saved the big push for the next inning when they struck with two away for their six runs.

Seven base hits, including doubles by DiMaggio, Bobby Doerr and Matt Batts, went into the inning which saw Calvert finally removed and Welteroth pitching again.

Weltheroth yielded the thirteenth Boston run in the eighth and to reward him the Nats got two runs in the ninth. An error, Lewis' second double and Gil Coan's single comprised the rally which fell nine runs short of stalemating the landslide.

IN SHORT—Boston's current home stand, which ends tomorrow night, has been one of the most successful in the club's history. The sockers have won 18 of their last 22 games, picked up four games on the Yankees and have boosted their attendance almost 500,000 during the winning stand

Eddie Robinson was confined to his hotel room with two badly bruised feet and may not be able to play tomorrow night . . . Ed Stewart is in Washington under treatment for internal disorder, but will probably rejoin the Nats in New York Tuesday . . . Nat pitchers have been disgustingly generous to Stephens and Williams in this series. Stephens has smacked three home runs and batted in 15 runs to bring his RBI total to 129. Williams has drawn 12 walks and scored eight runs in five games.

Joe Dobson (10-9) opposes any Washington pitcher brave enough to take the mound in tomorrow's series windup.

On Suder's Triple

A's Lose, 4-2, Beat Bombers In 2d, 4 to 3

Philadelphia, Aug. 14 (AP).—A game-winning triple by Pete Suder in the seventh inning gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees today in the nightcap of a Shibe Park doubleheader. The Yanks won the opener 4 to 2.

It was the A's first win over the league-leading Yankees in four games of the current series.

Fireman Joe Page was called on for the fortieth time in the opener, and as usual the southpaw relief artist of the Yankees came through in the clutch to halt an eighth inning rally and preserve the victory. The victory, however, went to Bob Porterfield, who blanked the A's during the first seven innings.

Rookie Southpaw Alex Kellner scored his forth pitching victory over the Yankees with a five-hit game over the league leaders. It was his fifteenth triumph of the season.

Philadelphia's margin of victory came on a walk to Ferris Fain and Suder's triple with two out. Suder also hit a homer in the fifth.

Third Baseman Billy Johnson drove in all three tallies for New York in the nightcap. His outfield fly with the bases loaded chased home Phil Rizzuto in the third inning. Then Johnson doubled behind a Joe DiMaggio single to account for New York's second marker in the fifth. Johnson tied it up at 3-3 when he unloaded his seventh home of the year in the top half of the seventh.

New York's first two runs in the fourth inning off Lou Brissie in the opener came without the semblance of a hit. Three men walked, then Charles Silvera bounced into a forceout at second. Johnny Lindell crashed into Second Baseman Nelson Fox, and when the latter sprawled on the ground Tommy Henrich and Di Maggio scored on the play.

The other pair of New York runs crossed in the fifth when Billy Johnson singled with the bags loaded and two out.

Potomac Club Ties Old Dominion

The Potomac Boat Club played host to the Old Dominion Boat Club of Alexandria and the Virginia Boat Club from Richmond, yesterday on the Potomac River. Potomac won four of the ten races on the card to tie with Old Dominion. The Virginia club could only come home in front in two of the races.

Tigers Take Two, 6-2, 4-3, From Browns

Detroit, Aug. 14 (AP).—Freddie Hutchinson and Art Houtteman pitched Detroit to a double victory over the St. Louis Browns today. Hutchinson won in a six-hitter 6 to 2 in the first game and Houtteman gave a seven-hit performance to win the nightcap, 4 to 3, before 35,289 fans.

The opener was Hutchinson's eleventh win of the year.

George Kell paced the Tigers with a double and a triple to drive in three runs in the first game and Jack Graham hit his eighteenth home run of the season for St. Louis.

Body Works Tops Thrifty

A three-run third inning enabled Northeast Body Works to beat Thrifty Liquors, 5-3, yesterday in a National City Unlimited League game on the West Ellipse.

Jack Hoffman's single with the bases loaded in the third drove in the tying and winning runs. Bob Miller limited the losers to seven hits while striking out seven and permitting a long walk.

Northeast thus stays one game behind the undefeated Bamby Bread team which beat Silver Spring Moose, 4-3, yesterday.

Joe Walcott KOs Tandberg In 5th Round

Stockholm, Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Jersey Joe Walcott, 35-year-old American Negro, eliminated big, blond, Olle Tandberg, Swedish champion, from heavyweight-title contention tonight by knocking him out in the fifth round before a record Scandinavian crowd of 43,000 at Raasunda Stadium.

Walcott scaled 194 pounds, and Tandberg, 31, towering above his older opponent, weighted 208.

An early estimate of gate indicated it would approximate $165,000. Walcott and Tandberg will receive 30 per cent each of the net gate.

Jersey Joe floored Tandberg for a count of eight in the third round, and for a count of nine in the fifth, before a left hook put Olle down for the full count later in the fifth.

Because of Tandberg's aggressive tactics in the first round. Referee Andrew Smyth of Ireland scored the opening session in Olle's favor. The next three rounds he scored even. The bout was scheduled for 12 rounds.

Tandberg was trying gamely to struggle to his feet as the referee counted him out.

As the fifth round opened, Tandberg began chasing his smaller opponent. Suddenly Walcott smashed Olle on the cheek with a terrific right hook. Olle sprawled sideways to the canvas and took a count of nine. Shortly after Tandberg had lurched to his feet, Walcott feinted with his right, and then smashed him on the chin with a left hook that crumpled him to the canvas for the full count.

After the bout, Walcott who has fought for the title three times in two years, announced he wanted another shot at Ezzard Charles, who outpointed him in Chicago June 22 for National Boxing Association recognition as world's heavyweight champion.

"I shall certainly beat Charles next time," the New Jersey Negro said.

Prankster's 'Bomb' Makes Swimmers Of Would-Be Sailors

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 14 (AP). John Newman and Bob Poulson started out on a sailing race here today and to an unexpected swim—all because of a firecracker.

It seems a prankster threw a giant cracker against the hull of their boat as they were gliding up to the starting line, and to the amazement of all, their 30-foot craft promptly headed for Davy Jones' locker. Wet, but not too gay, the intrepid sailors were picked up by the inevitable passing boat.

Braves Deny Players Fined

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Billy Southworth, manager of the Boston Braves, denied tonight the report he had fined two of his players for fighting.

"I have not fined anybody," Southworth told the Associated Press.

The Boston Globe, naming Club President Lou Perini as its source, said First Baseman Earl Torgeson and outfielder Jim Russell had been fined by the manager.

The players did not fight each other, but engaged in a skirmish with unidentified persons in a Chicago hotel room, the paper quoted Perini. Southworth also said Torgeson and Russell had not fought each other.

"Russell might have been bopped," Billy said. "But whatever happened is his affair."

Torgeson has returned home with a broken hand, which he said he suffered trying to protect himself from two fungo drives coming at his head.

Russell was reported by baseball writers with the Boston club as having two black eyes. He was quoted as saying he received the black eyes while playing with his brother at their Fayette, Pa., home.

Indians Win Twice, 4-3, 5-0, Behind Lemon, Mike Garcia

Cleveland, Aug. 14 (AP).—Pitchers Bob Lemon and Mike Garcia won a double-header for the Cleveland Indians over the Chicago White Sox today, 4 to 3 and 5 to 2, before a crowd of 46,212.

The first game was Lemon's fourteenth victory and the second, Garcia's tenth. Larry Doby socked his seventeenth homer into the right field stands in the third inning for two of the Tribe's runs. Howie Judson was the losing pitcher.

Pitching his third shutout, Garcia stymied the White Sox with five scattered hits. His mates were having trouble with Bill Pierce, too, for the first three innings. They didn't get a hit until the fourth.

Doby started out with a walk and advanced to second on an infield hit by Mickey Vernon. A single by Lou Boudreau scored Doby, then Johnny Berardino belted a two-run single. Bob Kennedy's double sent Berardino home.

The Sox got only six hits off Lemon in the first game.

Demaret, Palmer Tie at 275 in 'World' Golf; Play for Title Today

Snead Fails At Putting, Takes Third

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP)—Jimmy Demorrow at 2 p. m. (EST).
from Ojai, Calif., and Johnny Palmer, a pleasant plugger from Badin, N. C., took different routes around Tam o' Shanter course today, but ended in a tie for first place in the "World Championship" of golf with 72-hole scores of 275.

They will play it off tomorrow.

Demaret blistered the links for a final round of 67, 5 under par, for his total. Palmer scored a 2-under-par 70, his poorest round of the tournament.

Palmer Bogies on Last Green

It was a gift from Palmer to Demaret that set up the tie and 18-hole playoff. Johnny bobbled his second shot on the final green and lost the stroke which brought on the deadlock.

With his ball off to the left of the green, he chipped up short and missed the putt to bogie the hole. Until then Palmer looked like a sure winner.

He was never far off the pace during the "world" event, with a first round 67, then a 69, and a third round 69 which left him tied with Buck White, Greenwood, Miss., for the lead.

Today White and Palmer were paired for the final round and Johnny moved out in a hurry. He birdied two of the first three holes and finished one under par for the first nine. White, never winner of a major tourney, went two over per to plunge right out of contention.

Thirteen Strokes Under Par

Meanwhile, Demaret had started out early, before the bulk of the 20,000 spectators arrived, and he putted beautifully all the way around to come home for a 72-hole total which was 13 strokes under par.

After he finished, there were only two players with a chance, Palmer and Sam Snead, who had begun the round today one stroke behind Palmer and White.

Snead started fast, but his putting woes assailed him before he finished the first nine and he turned one stroke under par, still trailing Palmer. After that his putting was even worse and with two bogies in the next five holes, he lost all chance to tie.

Still Slamin' Sam finished third with a 71 for a total of 277, and that gave him a prize of $5000 and increased his earnings for the year to $30,893.83. Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, tied for fourth with Toney Penna, Cincinnati, at 278, good for $2500 each. Hamilton, Landover, Md., had a 71 for fifth place and $1500. White, who had a 75, took sixth money of $1200 with a 280 total.

Three Tie for Eighth

A three-way tie for eighth at 282 paid $900 each to Johnny Bulla, Jim Turnesa and Jim Ferrier.

Defending Lloyd Mangrum, winner of last week's All-American tourney and host Tam pro, this time picked up only $300 for a three-way tie at 284.

Tam's concurrent sideshows wound up as follows:

Women's pro-defending champion Babe Didrikson Zaharias retained her title and grabbed $1200 with a closing 79 for 301. She was eight strokes ahead of Patty Berg. All other spots in the eight-player event paid $100.

Women's amateur—Grace Lenczyk, Hartford, Conn., triumphed with a 313, closing with 77, for a one-stroke decision over Dot Kielty of Los Angeles.

Meet the Rookies

Hendren Looms as Fine Future Redskin Lineman

OCCIDENTAL COLLEGE, Calif., Aug. 13.—There's a big reason why the Washington Redskins will be deeper in linemen this season. Bob Hendren, rookie tackle, towers 6 feet 8 inches into the air and packs 240 pounds with no bulges.

Bob Hendren

As one of seven tackles on the 'Skin roster you might expect his chances of making the squad to be on the slim side. But he's improving every day.

Hendren is "the big man who wacn't there," as far as the Collegiate All-Star game was concerned. He was invited to join the stars but was excused by request of the Redskin management.

Heems that Hendren, the tallest man ever slated to play in the National Football League, was the victim of an injury jinx during his college days at Southern California. First there was a broken jaw which sidelined him for the 1947 season. Then, in 1948, he broke his arm.

THE TWO MAJOR injuries, both resulting from collisions with his own USC teammates, kept him out of both the Trojans' big games with Notre Dame. But he did earn All-Pacific Coast honors in 1947.

The Redskins, particularly anxious to get him in shape, asked that he be excused from the All-Star game. Two other rookie tackles of the 'Skins were in Chicago for the game and meanwhile Hendren made the most of their absence from training here.

Line Coach Turk Edwards, himself, a former great tackle, likes the way big Bob handles himself.

"He ought to help us," Turk commented, after two weeks of watching the huge lineman in practice.—BILL BURNETT.

Conversation Enlightening

Redskins Not 'Grid Happy' When It Comes to Talk

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Occidental College, Calif., Aug. 14.—Some football fans may be shocked to learn that professional football players, as obviously important as the game is to them, do not think and talk football all the time.

For two weeks now I've watched the Washington Redskins go through training contortions twice a day. Most of this watching has been done from the comparative safety of the area a few feet behind the offensive team.

I've talked to the players about a lot of football, of course, as they took their turns at offense and defense, but most of the time I had to bring up the subject. A typical afternoon's conversation covered the following items:

Baseball—Tommy Mont feints beautifully to right and left, slips the fullback the ball and drops back for a breathing spell. "Heard how the Nats are making out?" he wants to know. There follows a brief discussion of both National and American League races.

Taylor Talks of Books.

Literature—Hugh Taylor, his Oklahoma twang in fine shape, yells "Watch your language" at somebody and then asks if anybody's read "The Naked and The Dead." A couple of players have read the outspoken novel about Pacific warfare and Taylor caps the conversation with: "It's a little too much down-to-earth, although very authenic."

Real Estate—"Suppose I'll be able to find an apartment somewhere in Washington, Dan Sandifer wants to know. The lithe halfback, newly married, thinks hotel life is too expensive. Eddie Saenz has a word of praise for a new aparment development near Peace Cross, but says he won't bring his family East this winter. "Costs too much," he says, "and besides it's too cold for the kids. Their hands get all red when they play outdoors." Eddie has three boys and a girl under five years old.

Family Problems—Harry Gilmer insists he isn't homesick for his wife and two tiny girls in Birmingham, but his face lights up as he mentions a letter from home. "They tell me my 2-year-old daughter stubbed her toe the other day," he grins, "and now walks on the side of her foot with her toe in the air. Cute as heck, my wife says."

Delicacies for Demao

California Marketing — Clyde Ehrhardt relieves Al Demao at the offensive center job and the big veteran, of Italian descent, becomes involved in word-play over olives, dates and figs. Puns on the word "dates" are exhausted before Al is told where he can buy three of his favorite edibles and have them shipped home to his wife.

All of which should prove, if nothing else, that football players are human.

Browns Beat Hornets, 21-0

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Cleveland Browns, who will open defense of their All-American Conference championship in a couple of weeks, look again like the three-time winner of A. A. C. honors.

Paul Brown's snappy squad whipped the Chicago Hornets, 21-0, today in the Midwest's first pro exhibition, and only once did the Chicagoans threaten.

The Browns capitalized on three breaks—two fumbles and a pass interception to set up their touchdowns. Otto Graham scored on a 29-yard run on the opening period, when trapped looking for a receiver, and Ed Sustersic, rookie fullback, scored on plunges of 3 and 1 yards.

Albert Leads 49ers To Win Over Bills, 21-10

San Francisco, Aug. 14 (AP).—Frankie Albert connected with long passes for two touchdowns and the San Francisco 49ers scored a third on a 24-yard run by Eddie Carr to defeat the Buffalo Bills, 21-10, in an exhibition today.

Dunham, Cantwell, Win at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 14 (AP).—Frank Dunham and Frank Cantwell, both of Washington, D. C., yesterday won their second-round matches in the National Public Parks Tennis Championship tourney here today.

Dunham beat Don Sieffert of Chicago, 6—2, 6—3, 2—6, 7—5, while Cantwell turned back Donald G. Sink of Pittsburgh, 6—3, 6—1, 6—4.

Central Drive Wins Hunter Class Ribbons at Bull Run

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Manasses, Va., Aug. 14.—Central Drive, handled by Alex Calvert's Warrenton, Va., stable and Paul Fout's sensational dun-colored mare Golden Chance, also from Warrenton, took the measure of a good field of performers to annex the championship awards in the hunter and jumper contests yesterday at the Bull Run Hunt Club horse show held on the Portner estate, the site of the old Fort Beauregard.

Robert C. Lee's Bonne Fille, fresh from her championship triumph at the Annandale show last week jumped her way to the open reserve tricolor award, while Mrs. H. T. Holliday's Johnny P. handled by Manley Carter of Orange, Va., was the hunter runner-up.

Central Drive got the usual fine ride from Mrs. Calvert to repeat her championship win in this area for the second consecutive time in as many attempts by winning blues in the ladies hunters and open hunter events for a winning score of 10 points.

Golden Chance, spectators' favorite, jumped her way to the tricolor award with a win in the knockdown-and-out, jumped off twice at the 5-foot height, and the warm-up event also earning a second place ribbon in the touch-and-out class with her owner in the irons.

Cook Wins Title In Rifle Match

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 14—Art Cook, Washington, scored 1994x 2000 to win the Maryland State Individual rifle championship and 399x400 in the team match to lead the National Capitol Rifle and Pistol Club to its second straight Maryland State team championship. The Greenbelt Gun Club won second place in the team championships.

My Sweetie Sets Record At Red Bank

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 14 (AP).—William E. Cantrell of Louisville, Ky., broke a nine-year regatta record today when he drove My Sweetie to victory in the seventeenth annual National Sweepstakes trophy.

He set a mark of 87.464 miles per hour for four laps of the 2½-mile Navesink River course. It was 10.541 mph better than the National Sweepstakes record (76.923) made by Dan Arena at Red Bank in 1940 in Herb Mendelson's Notre Dame.

Cantrell also was clocked at 89.108 in his third lap, breaking the previous lap mark of 76.923 set by Arena in the Notre Dame.

My Sweetie, Horace E. Dodge's 1949 Gold Cup champion, captured the trophy on the basis of cumulative points in two heats. Cantrell came in second in the first heat Saturday after drawing a one-lap penalty for beating the starter's gun.

He won the second heat today by lapping four of the seven starters.

The Etta, driven by George E. Sarant of Freeport, N. Y., was second in the final point standings with a third in today's heat and a first place yesterday.

Harry Lynn's Lake Hopatcong (N. J.) speedster La-Ha-Ha was in third place in the point totals, coming in third in yesterday's heat and registering a second today.

My Sweetie also won the day's co-feature Red Bank Gold Cup free-for-all 10-mile race for inboards.

Gonzales Wins Casino Title

Newport, R. I., Aug. 14 (U.P.)—National singles champion Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles won the Newport Casino invitation tennis championship today by outclassing Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., 10—8, 9—11, 6—3, 6—4.

The doubles title went to Earl Cochell of New York and Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., who whipped Felicissimo Ampon of the Philippines and Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles, 7—5, 7—5, 6—3.

Mulloy had trouble with his service and his forehand stroking in the singles final, allowing Gonzales to take advantage of every opening.

Gonzales' victory earned him the first leg on the famed singles challenge vase as well as recognition in the battle for a singles berth on this year's United States Davis Cup team.

Mrs. DuPont Wins

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 14 (AP).—Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Wilmington, Del., national champion, today fought from behind to defeat defending champion Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, and win the Essex Country Club Women's Tennis Tournament championship. She previously won in 1941.

Sid Street Breaks Own Day-Old Record At Red Bank; D. C. Racers Share in Honors

By Happy Walker

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 14.—Sid Street, who broke the record speed for 225-cubic-inch hydroplanes yesterday, did it all over today on the closing day of the National Sweepstakes Regatta.

The Kansas City speed merchant burst his day-old world record in his Z-Z-Zip with 76.524 miles per hour, bettering his mark of 75.122 set in the opening heat of the regatta competition yesterday.

Both speeds are better than the recognized record of 74.751 mph set March 6, 1948, by Loren Pennington of California, in Copperhead, at Lakeland, Fla.

There were other records broken for the edification of the crowds that lined both sides of the Shrewsbury River.

One, broken by Les Trafton of Saint Petersburg, Fla. in his Tornado was unofficial. Trafton whipped his craft around the course at a world record time of 56.998, but it won't be recognized because there were fewer than four Class C boats racing in the event. Trafton holds the record, 52.386, set at Saint Petersburg last year.

Washington area competitors shared some of the glory today. Sheila Boyd and Alice B. Cohee, both of St. Michaels, Md., took first and third in the 48-cubic-inch runabout class. H. Stanley Jones made it a clean sweep by taking second in the class, for the honor of the popular Miles River Yacht Club.

Nick Allen, jr., of Newport News, Va., took a heat third and was well on the way to a second victory in the B outboard event that attracted 56 boats, when his motor failed and he was forced to withdraw. Ben Jankowski of Glen Head, L. I., won out with 625 points. Dick Bower of Falls Church, Va., ran out of the money.

Vic Scott of Levittown, N. Y., in his Flying Scot, beat out a stellar field, including Emil Mayer, Henry Shakeshaft and Ben Jankowski, to take the F hydro class. Hudson Moses of Washington and Jim Broaddus of Fredricksburg, Va., ran poorly to finish far behind.

In the 225-cubic-inch division II hydro final, Jerry Powell of Richmond, Va., made it a clean sweep at the expense of Sid Street who, while finishing first in the final heat, was nosed out. Powell scored 700 points.

Street evened the score in the 135-inch hydros, turning the tables, 700 to 625 points, in two hard fought heats.

Bill Rogers and Eric Greenleaf, officials of Washington's President's Cup Regatta, were on hand today

D. C. Girl Loses In Net Finals At Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 14.—Mary Slaughter of Charlottesville, Va., captured the under 15 years girls tenis title for the Middle Atlantic section today defeating Belmar Gunderson of Washington, D. C. 6—3, 10—8.

Elaine Lewicki, Hamtramck, Mich., won the Middle Atlantic Girls Open Tennis championship today, trouncing Bonnie Mackay of Cincinnati 6—2, 6—2.

Miss Lewicki then teamed with Miss Mackay to win the doubles chompionship from Suzanne Herr of Miami Beach, Fla., and Toby Greenberg, Chicago, 8—6, 6—0.

If all the people you called came calling

IMAGINE seeing in person everyone you talk with on the telephone in a single month. You'd probably need plenty of extra space to handle the crowd.

For if you are like most folks, you're using your telephone a lot these days—to run errands and make appointments, to do your shopping and keep in touch with friends and members of the family—in and out of town.

When you stop to think of the countless steps and time your telephone saves, at little cost—and then remember it's always ready to bring help in emergencies—you'll surely agree it's one of the biggest values in your home.

Few things give you so MUCH for so little

Vander Meer Wins

Reds Take 2 From Cubs, 8-0, 4-2

Chicago, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds swept both ends of a double header with the Chicago Cubs here today before a crowd of 32,770. They captured the opener, 4-2, then took the second game, 8 to 0, behind the five-hit pitching of Johnny Vander Meer.

Ken Raffensberger went the distance in the curtain raiser, scattering 10 hits for his twelfth victory. A boot by Virgil Stallcup allowed the two tying runs to score in the ninth for a 2-2 deadlock. But then Warren Hacker, third Chicago hurler, contributed a vital error to the eventual victory in the twelfth.

Marshall, Rigney, Mize Hit Hard

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Dave Koslo and Larry Jansen pitched the New York Giants to victories in both ends of a doubleheader with Philadelphia, 8-1 and 1-0 today.

Larry Jansen bested Monk Meyer with a two-hitter in the nightcap for his thirteenth victory. The double win gave the Giants undisputed possession of third place.

Willard Marshall, Bill Rigney and Johnny Mize drove home two runs apiece for the Giants in the opener. Koslo stopped the Phils on eight hits in gaining his eighth triumph.

Civil Service Works On Promotion Policy For Federal Employes

The Civil Service Commission is at work on a promotion policy to cover Federal employes in all Federal agencies. If put into effect as planned, the promotion program will be the most far-reaching and comprehensive of any ever attempted in the Government.

Employes and their agencies alike will be told under what conditions grade promotions are in order. The agencies will be encouraged to promote their own people to better jobs—to make Government a real career service.

Another phase of the plan would have the Civil Service Commission maintain a list of able career people in the top brackets who could be transferred to jobs in other agencies. Something similar to this was recommended by the Hoover Commission.

STORY: During hearings on the Lesinski bill to grant increased benefits to employes who are injured on the job, Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) quipped that he thought the job of a Senator was "extremely hazardous." But, he added, the hazards were more spiritual than physical. Senator Withers (D., Ky.) agreed that there is a great deal of mental suffering involved in a Senator's job. These two Senators weren't responsible for it, but when the bill got before the full Senate Labor Committee, it was amended to include members of Congress. There is no good reason why they should be excluded from it.

ARMY: A real possibility for appointment as Assistant Army Secretary is Karl Bendetson, a San Francisco attorney, who served in the Army during the war. He has the indorsement of a California Democratic bloc for the post.

NAVY LAY-OFFS: Upward of 1400 additional civilians are to be laid off from Navy yards and offices in the San Francisco Bay area. And several California members of Congress are about ready to let loose with a blast about the discharges. They are charging that East Coast yards are being given preferential treatment. Actually, East Coast Navy civilians have the opposite complaint.

It's no secret that heavy political pressure is being placed on the Navy to exempt certain of its yards and offices from further discharges. Also, there's reason to believe that certain military officials have listened sympathetically to the pleas. Some of the military people are asking: "Are we going to be forced to have a political layoff, or will we have one, as bad as it will be, in the best interest of the country and the Navy?" We'll be watching developments for the answer.

FCC: The bill passed by the Senate to reorganize the Federal Communications Commission does these among other things: raises the salaries of the FCC commissioners from $10,000 to $15,000; forbids commissioners to resign during their terms of office to accept jobs with the industries they regulate, and requires the agency to report annually to Congress on names, salaries, qualifications, backgrounds, etc., of all its employes.

MILITARY hospitals, those under the Army and Navy, could pay their doctors, dentists, and nurses higher salaries if Congress approves a proposed rider to the military budget bill. The amendment, offered by Senator Thomas (D., Okla.), who handles the bill in the Senate, would allow the military hospitals to pay their employes under the same rate schedule used by the Veterans' Administration The VA scale is higher than Classification Act salaries.

VA hospital employes aren't included in either the Murray or Long bills to raise the salaries of classified employes. But identical bills are in the House and Senate to boost the VA hospital pay scale. It's a good bet one will pass if the classified bills are approved.

At VA, incidentally, Administrator Carl Gray has issued a new order which gives Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, chief of the Medicine and Surgery Department, far greater control over the agency's hospitals. All hospital and medical problems now must be cleared through Magnuson.

Plan to Curb Park Body Is Criticized By Demaray

Hoover Proposals 'Confuse Advances' Already Made, Senators Informed

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Hoover Commission proposals to strip the National Capital Park and Planning Commission of its independent status and take away its land-acquisition powers were sharply criticized yesterday.

These suggestions "greatly confuse the advances" made by NCPPC, its acting executive officer, A. E. Demaray, said in a letter outlining his views on the Hoover recommendations.

The letter was sent to Chairman McClellan (D., Ark.) of the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures, which is holding hearings on Federal reorganization plans.

The Hoover group proposed that NCPPC, now an independent agency reporting direct to the President, be placed under the "Secretary of Works for administrative purposes."

"Importance of Capital"

Objecting to this suggestion, Demaray pointed out to Senator McClellan that legislation to broaden and redefine the functions of NCPPC already had cleared the Senate District Committee.

"Because of the importance of the Nation's Capital and the development of Washington and environs and because this is a planning agency, not a public works agency," said Demaray, "legislation drawn by the Budget Bureau and approved by the President leaves it an independent agency responsible directly to the President.

"We therefore urge strongly that the President's preference in this matter be followed."

Demaray said the other major Hoover Commission proposal to transfer NCPPC's authority to purchase land for District parks and playgrounds to the District Commissioners, "would greatly confuse advances made by the Commission."

Cites Home Rule Bill

"On the other hand," he said, "study of the Budget Bureau goes fully into the question of land acquisition and justifies the continuance of the present activities of the Commission" in respect to land acquisition.

Demaray cited provisions of the Senate-passed Kefauver home rule and reorganization bill which conflict with the Budget Bureau plan for strengthening NCPPC.

The Kefauver measure would permit NCPPC recommendations on city rezoning proposals only with regard to their effect on "the Federal interest."

Alternative Suggested

John Ihlder, executive officer of National Capital Housing Authority, also has opposed a similar Hoover recommendation to place his agency under the Secretary of Works.

As an alternative, Ihlder suggested esatblishment of an "office for the National Capital" to act as an overseer on District relations with the Federal Government.

Any change in NCHA's independent status, Ihlder said, might hamper the close working relationship his agency now has with other Federal housing agencies.

D. C. Woman's Screams Halt Housebreaker

A woman's shrill screams yesterday frightened off a housebreaker who had attempted to enter her bedroom at 1223 N st. nw., shortly after 3:30 a. m.

The woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Ellis, 38, of 1223 N st. nw., told police she saw, silhouetted against the light from a street lamp, the figure of a white-shirted man entering the window of her front bedroom.

She screamed for her father-in-law, who was asleep in an adjoining room. The intruder dropped from the window and disappeared.

In another break in, an unestimated number of watches was stolen from the Bates Jewelry Store, 9th and F sts. nw., early yesterday after a thief hurled a brick through the window.

A soldier-passerby notified police as the robbery alarm system sounded off. Three cars converged on the scene immediately but the housebreaker, described as a dark-skined Negro about 5 feet 8 inches tall and wearing a brown sport shirt and light hat, had disappeared.

Police also were seeking a light-skinned Negro about 5 feet 10 inches tall and wearing a blue printed sport shirt reported to have broken into an apartment at 71 New York ave. nw.

Audrey Coates, an occupant of the apartment, reported to police her room was ransacked but nothing taken. Ann Penn, of the same address, reported some change stolen from her room.

Drowning Victim Identified As Washington Mother of 5

The body of a 38-year-old woman who was drowned Saturday while returning from a fishing trip at Colton's Point, St. Mary's County, Md., was recovered yesterday by Maryland State police.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Evelyn Powleff, of 614 A st. ne., mother of five children.

Her two fishing companions, James A. Rowe, 37, a cab driver who lives at the A street address and his brother, Robert Rowe, 40, a bus driver, of 535 10th st. ne., told police they were looking out of the boat preparing to land when they suddenly saw the woman in the water.

They said she made no outcry while in the water and no sound as she fell from the boat.

James Rowe told police he stopped the boat and jumped overboard in an attempt to rescue the woman, but said she sank before he could get to her. The drowning occurred at about 7 p. m.

They said Mrs. Powleff, clad in slacks and sport shirt, was seated in the middle of the boat just prior to her drowning and that they were about a quarter mile from shore at the time of the accident. They had been fishing for about four hours and started for shore when the water became choppy.

Dr. Julian Lane, St. Mary's County medical examiner last night issued a certificate of death due to accidental drowning. He said there were no unusual circumstances concerning the tragedy and that he had released the body to the Robinson funeral home in Leonardtown.

Mrs. Powleff's three daughters are living with her mother. Her two sons are in the Army and Navy.

Catholics Move Chancery Office

The chancery office of the Archdiocese of Washington has been moved to 1719 Rhode Island ave. nw., Msgr. James E Cowhig, chancellor of the archdiocese, announced yesterday.

The move, made over the weekend, will provide more office space for the chancery, the Archdiocesan Tribunal and other offices, Monsignor Cowhig said.

The former Chancery building at 1723 Rhode Island ave. nw., will be used as quarters for priests of St. Matthew's Cathedral and for visiting bishops and priests.

Salvation Army's Jap Leader Arriving

Commissioner Masuzo Uyemura of Tokyo, head of Salvation Army activities in Japan, will arrive in Washington today for conferences with Salvation Army officials here. The Salvation Army, disbanded by the Japanese government in 1940, has been reconstituted under authority of Gen. Douglas MacArthur by Commissioner Uyemura.

Home Rule Gets Backing In 3 States

18 of 21 Members In House Favor Self-Government; Only 2 Opposed

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington home rule legislation would be given strong support in the House by its members from New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware.

Of 21 representatives from the three States 18 are on record as favoring home rule, two Marylanders are opposed, and one New Jersey member is not committed.

For home rule	155
Against	33
Noncommittal	22
Not available	1

The lineup of members not in Congress last year for the seven areas is:

For home rule	45
Against	6
Noncommittal	11

Other areas covered by the surveys were New England, West Coast, Mountain States and the Dakotas, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan, and Ohio and Indiana.

Delaware's House delegation unanimously supports home rule—the delegation is one man, Representative J. Caleb Boggs (R.), who twice voted with home-rule supporters in last year's only House test.

Thirteen of New Jersey's 14 members are on record as favoring home rule. The fourteenth, Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R.), now at home, did not vote on the issue last year. Through an office aide, he said this week he had not studied the proposal sufficiently to comment on it.

"I'm Delighted"

The nearly solid New Jersey lineup for home rule is hardly surprising since one of its members, Representative James C. Auchincloss (R.) launched the drive for home rule in the Eightieth Congress and still is playing a leading role in pressing for House action on the Senate-approved home rule bill.

Both Maryland's Congressmen from the Districts bordering Washington have supported the home rule plan since it first reached the House last year.

One of them, Representative J. Glenn Beall (R.), representing the Western Maryland Congressional District, including Montgomery County, helped send the bill to the House in the Eightieth Congress and is ready as a member of the House District Committee to vote similar action this year.

The second, Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D.), whose southern Maryland district includes Prince Georges County, voted with home-rule backers in both the House roll calls last year.

Another Marylander, Representative Edward A. Garmatz (D.) of the Third (Baltimore) District, opposed the home-rule plan last year, voting with opponents in the two roll calls, but now is ready to support the new legislation.

Since his votes against the plan, said Garmatz, he had further studied the home rule legislation and will be for it. One main reason for his decision, he said, is the amount of time Congress wastes dealing with minor District matters.

Wants District Ceded Back

Representative George H. Fallon (D.) of the Fourth Baltimore District, also is on record for home rule.

The two Maryland opponents are Representative Edward T. Miller, Republican from the Eastern Shore, and William P. Bolton, Democrat, the delegation's one freshman member, representing the Second District.

Representative Miller said the only basis on which he would support home rule would be turning the District back to Maryland, just as the Virginia part of the original 10-mile square area was ceded back to that State. He said he opposes home rule legislation now proposed.

Representative Bolton said he is inclined to oppose the home rule plan.

"I just can't make up my mind that it would benefit the city of Washington," said Bolton.

New Jersey's three newcomers to the House all favor the home rule proposal. Their comments:

Representative Charles R. Howell (D):

"I'm rather strongly for home rule. To me the home rule idea makes a lot of sense for two reasons. First, it would relieve Congress of much of the detail work it now must do in functioning as the city council of Washington.

"Second, it would make for better conditions in the District to give its residents the right to vote. They ought to have the right to vote on the kind of taxes the District is to have. I was against the District sales tax, but if the people here decide they wanted it, that would be different."

Representative Hugh J. Addonizio (D.):

Representative Peter W. Rhodino, jr.:

"Generally I'm in favor of home rule for Washington. We seem to want to give everybody else in the world an opportunity to rule themselves, and I don't think we can justly deny the same opportunity to the people of the District."

New Idea in Flim-Flam

Police Rookie Hits Jackpot On Undercover Investigation

A policeman, plucked from "rookie school" to conduct an undercover investigation of liquor and gambling law violations, not only completed his assignment early yesterday but also turned up a flim-flam wrinkle to boot.

The rookie investigator, who must remain anonymous for "business" reasons, registered at a hotel at 1118 13th st. nw. about two weeks ago after complaints of liquor and gambling violations had been made to the Second Precinct station.

He became widely acquainted in the neighborhood and was present in a Toddle House on 19th st. between K and L nw., a week ago when three men he knew "pulled" the flim-flam.

Two of the men sat in one section of the restaurant, the third sat by himself.

The first two, after having a snack, paid with a $5 bill, got change and left.

Shortly after the third man paid his bill with $1, but demanded change for a $5 bill, insisting he had paid with the higher denomination.

"I can prove it," he said. "The bill has my girl's name and phone number on it."

A search by the cashier turned up such a $5 bill in the register, obviously left by the first pair. The trickster was paid off.

The undercover man was unable to make the arrest on the spot since that would tip off his main objective—liquor and gambling violators.

Saturday afternoon, detectives from the Second Precinct station raided a section of the hotel, at 1116 13th st. nw., and arrested Jack C. Commings, 31, of 4318 Colmar Manor, Md., charged with operating a lottery and setting up a gaming table, and George M. Whitney, 40, of 1015 N st. nw., on similar charges. Each was released in $2000 bond for Municipal Court appearance today.

Early yesterday the raiders returned and picked up Leo F. Ryan, 32, charged with illegal sale of whisky. At the same time they arrested the three men alleged to have been involved in the flim-flam.

The latter three were released later pending a conference today with Government prosecutors on technical problems imposed by the arrest occurring a week after the crime was observed.

Acting Capt. Joseph V. Hunt of the Second Precinct led the raids. He was accompanied by Detectives Irving Murphy and George C. Prathers.

Pulls Out Plug

Girl Saves Woman, 38, From Burns

MISS ETHEL GREY

Quick-witted action by a 15-year-old high school girl probably saved Mrs. Ruth B. Becker, 38, 4932 Cordell ave., Bethesda, Md., from serious burns and injury yesterday.

Mrs. Becker

Mrs. Becker, who is a teacher at Leland Junior High School had placed a small electric lamp on the open door of her gas range oven and was cleaning the oven when the lamp turned over and charged the metal stove.

She could not release her grip on the stove because of the charge, she said later. Miss Ethel Grey, 15, of 4918 Cordell ave., a junior at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, who was visiting the Becker home, pulled the plug of the lamp out of the wall socket.

Mrs. Becker was taken to Suburban Hospital by the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad and treated for burns and shock. Her hands and an elbow had first degree burns. She was kept at the hospital for observation although her condition was not regarded as serious.

Mrs. Becker has three children, all students at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School. Her husband, Harry Becker, is an official with the United Auto Workers insurance division.

Boy, 5, Only Cut In Traffic Fall

A 5-year-old boy tumbled from a moving automobile on the holiday-packed Mount Vernon hwy., 5 miles south of Alexandria, yesterday afternoon but escaped serious injury.

The child, Joe Donohoe, was held at Alexandria Hospital for observation. A hospital official said he apparently suffered only one small cut on his forehead.

The child was riding with his mother, Mrs. Jane Donohoe, who gave her address as the Arlington Hotel. She told officers the car was just starting and moving into traffic when her son leaned against the rear door handle and fell out.

Girl Surprised By Sorry Sleeper

Harriet Reid got a big surprise early yesterday when she entered her home at 1425 Corcoran st. nw. and found a strange man sleeping under the bed.

She got an even bigger surprise when the intruder shuffled to his feet, politely mumbled "sorry," and scurried diffidently out of the house.

William Cox, 73, of 1821 Le Droit ct. nw., was fatally injured about 1:10 a. m. yesterday when he was struck by an automobile while crossing 13th st. nw. at W st.

He died in Freedmen's Hospital at 6 a. m. without recovering consciousness. Death was attributed to shock. He suffered compound fractures of both legs.

It was the first traffic fatality in the District since July 20 and the twenty-eighth pedestrian death this year. At the corresponding time last year there were 32.

Police said Cox was struck by an automobile driven by Francis T. lemons, 23, of 4317 S 9th st., Arlington. Lemons, a clerk at Peoples Drug Store, 3903 Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria, was held for appearance at a coroner's inquest today at 11:30 a. m.

Seven-year-old Edward V. Smith was still in serious condition, but reported improving, at Freedmen's after being struck by an automobile in front of his home, 427 Warren st. nw., Saturday night.

According to police, the boy ran into the path of a vehicle operated by William L. Amis, 28, of 2350 Champlain st. nw. He suffered head injuries and contusions of the face and body.

Apartment Fire Fells 2 In Mt. Rainier

Two persons overcome by smoke and more than a score of others were evacuated from a three-story Kaywood Gardens apartment house early yesterday, the result of a fire started in a sofa.

Overcome were Miss Doris French, 38, in whose first-floor apartment at 4304 Russell ave, the fire occurred, and Thomas M. Graves, a Government Printing Office proofreader, who collapsed while trying to rescue Miss French.

Kaywood Gardens is in Mount Rainier, Md., not far from the District line.

The fire was discovered about 1 a. m. by Graves' wife who smelled smoke and, looking from their window in an adjoining building, saw it billowing from Miss French's apartment.

Miss French, already overcome, could be seen lying on the apartment floor, and Graves, throwing a wet towel over his head, broke down the door to the smoke-and-flame-filled apartment, but was overcome by the smoke.

Chief Karl Young of the Mount Rainier Volunteer Fire Department brought the woman to safety. She was treated at the scene by the Brentwood Rescue Squad and taken to Prince Georges General Hospital. She remained in the hospital last night.

Graves, who collapsed near the door, also was pulled to safety. He was treated at the scene and taken to Prince Georges General Hospital, but was able to leave after treatment.

The fire was confined to Miss French's apartment, causing about $1000 damage to walls, floors, rugs and furniture. The building is of fire resistant. construction, which largely was responsible, according to firemen, for keeping the fire in check.

Assumption Feast Set for Today

The Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary will be celebrated today by Roman Catholics in the Archdiocese of Washington and throughout the world.

The feast, which commemorates the reception into heaven of the Blessed Virgin, is a holy day of obligation for all Catholics.

Jobless, Ill Man, 59, Plunges to His Death

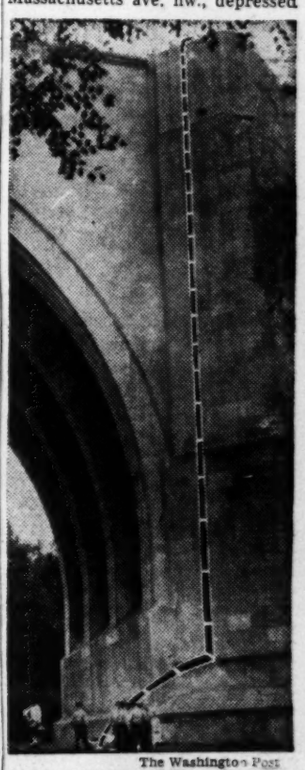
Lewis B. Harvey Leaves Note Saying There Was 'No Future' for Him

Jobless and ill, Lewis Bolton Harvey, a furniture salesman, plunged 150 feet to his death from the Calvert st. bridge at 5:40 p. m. yesterday. He was 59.

His body crashed into a concrete abutment 4 feet from the ground on the south side of the span, angled off and fell on the grass alongside Rock Creek pkwy.

He lived at the Cairo Hotel.

It was the second death plunge from the bridge this year. Last June 22, Arnold Johnson, 200 Massachusetts ave. nw., depressed over illness, slid off the span's railing.



The Washington Post

Harvey was identified from a social security card found in his pocket. Two notes also were found on the body.

One note stated that there was "no future" for him and gave instructions for disposition of his body.

Another note instructed that his personal effects be given to his "best friend," Ralph Klein, 1474 Columbia rd. nw.

Klein's sister, Miss Florence Klein, told reporters that Harvey, a bachelor, had been lonely, depressed and worried about a back ailment.

An official of Colony House, Inc., a furniture store at 4244 Connecticut ave. nw., said Harvey had been fired from his salesman's job there about a month ago after several unexplained absences from work.

A native of Wilmington, Del., Harvey had worked for Colony House for about five years and had previously worked for Woodward & Lothrop.

Until about a week ago, Harvey lived at 1830 17th st. nw. His former landlady, Mrs. LeClaire Hoover, said he had moved because she had become ill and needed the room.

Harvey was pronounced dead at the scene by an Emergency Hospital ambulance doctor, called by a motorist, Robert Segal, Park Lane Apartments, 21st st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., who witnessed the fatal plunge.

Harvey's body was removed to the morgue as scores of curious lined the roadway following the plunge.

Police said the victim's nearest relatives are aunts who live in Philadelphia and Wilmington.

Street Robberies Lead to 4 Arrests

Four men were arrested by police early yesterday in connection with street robberies Saturday night.

Charged with robbery in connection with two separate holdups on the corner of 5th and I sts. nw. are Richard L. Cavanaugh, 24, of 1243 N st. nw., and Henry L. Johnson, 43, of 212 Indiana ave. nw.

According to Lieut. E. E. Scott, head of the robbery squad, both were identified by the victims, Allen Wilmore, 36, of 206 D st. nw., and Philip M. Joyner, 62, of 6514 Linwood pl. ne.

In another case, Lieutenant Scott said John W. Nesbit, 21, of 1004 Kenyon st. nw., was charged with robbery and assault with a dangerous weapon on complaint of Alexander Davis, 31, of the Lincoln Hotel.

Davis, who was robbed and cut on the chest in Library Park, identified Nesbit while being treated at Freedmen's Hospital, Lieutenant Scott said. A razor blade was found on Nesbit, he added.

The fourth man, Charles D. Pratt, 23, of 1326 12th st. nw., was accused of robbing Robert W. Tyler of Fort Belvoir, Va., at 10th and M sts. nw.

In all cases the amount taken was small, Lieutenant Scott said.

Two other robbery complaints were registered, the robbery squad head reported. Priscilla Crockett, 27, of 501 O st. nw., said she was knocked to the ground and robbed of her pocketbook by a dark-skinned Negro while walking on Q st. nw. near 6th st.

Richard Davis, 39, of 409 4th st. nw., reported he was yoked and robbed of his wallet by two Negroes who approached him when he paused to watch a sidewalk altercation.

Goodwill Industries Group to Go to Parley

Four representatives of the Davis Memorial Goodwill Industries, 1218 New Hampshire ave. nw., will leave today to attend the biennial national delegate assembly of Goodwill Industries of America at Lake Geneva, Wisc.

The Washington delegates, who will meet with more than 100 other representatives, are W. Harold Snape, director; Mrs. Blanch T. Riddle, textile supervisor; Chester L. Rees, director of industrial operations, and Louis C. Schenk, public relations officer.

Man Dead In Closet Held Suicide

A 46-year-old resident of the fashionable La Salle Apartments ended his life yesterday by hanging himself in a clothes closet in his apartment.

The man, Thomas E. Armstrong, who had resided there for four years, left a note indicating worry over ill health and unemployment, police disclosed.

The body was discovered about 2 p. m. by Miss Ethel Ingram, a friend who also lives in the apartment house at 1028 Connecticut ave. nw., police said.

A certificate of suicide was issued by Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, who said Armstrong had been dead for about two hours.

Armstrong was found suspended by a window sash cord attached to a clothes hook inside the closet.

Police were summoned by occupants of a nearby apartment when they heard Miss Ingram screaming after she entered the apartment.

Miss Ingram told Detective Sergt. A. D. Clarke, homicide squad, she had seen Armstrong about 10:30 a. m. He told her then, she said, he was going out for a while and would call her when he returned. She had tried unsuccessfully to reach him by phone for quite some time before going to the apartment, she said.

The note, addressed to Frank Mayer, resident manager of the apartments, stated that Armstrong couldn't "stand it any longer," and added his worry over his condition.

Armstrong, a Harvard graduate, had worked during the war as a Government consultant, Miss Ingram said, but had not been employed for the past two or three months. She said he had been despondent over his inability to obtain employment and that he could not get Government status.

Suspect in Shooting Case Arrested After Auto Crash

A Sparrows Point, Md., man, sought by police there on a shooting charge arising out of a bootlegging case, was arrested here yesterday morning by Park Police as he attempted to flee from a traffic crash.

The wanted man, Albert Royster, 19, of Baltimore, piled a car, later learned to be stolen a few hours before near Baltimore, against a light pole on 14th st. sw. near the Jefferson Memorial, shortly after 8 a. m., police said.

Leaving the scene as a Park Police cruiser drove up, he told the officers he was "going to turn in an accident report," they said. Instead, they held him for investigation.

Royster told police he was driving to North Carolina to attend his father's funeral.

Police said they learned the automobile was stolen about 2:15 a. m. in Turner's Station, a Baltimore suburb. According to Baltimore County police in Dundalk the car was taken from James Davis, of Turner's Station.

Police said Davis reported he was forced from the car by Royster while stopping at an intersection. The bandit kept his hand in his coat pocket, as though armed, Davis was said to have told police.

Royster was turned over to Sergt. Raymond H. Vogel of the Sparrows Point Bethlehem Steel plant police, yesterday afternoon on a fugitive warrant charging assault with a dangerous weapon.

The shooting from which the assault charge arose occurred about two weeks ago, according to Chief H. Miles Marcus of the Sparrows Point plant police. The plant police have jurisdiction within the town limits.

A day or two before, Chief Marcus said, five men were arrested on suspicion of smuggling untaxed liquor into the town. After investigation they were turned over to the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Treasury Department, he said, and later released.

Royster was not among the group picked up. Apparently believing that one of the group had "talked too much" to the investigators, Royster was charged with firing one shot at Melvin Drumworth, who was struck in the knee, Chief Marcus said.

Boy, 2, Is Killed By Brother, 6, Playing Indians

Patrolman Joseph Wagner said 2-year-old John Reigle was killed instantly by a shotgun blast fired by his 6-year-old brother, Howard. Some of the shot struck another child, Carole Childs, in the chest, he said. After an operation at Annapolis Emergency Hospital her condition was reported as fair.

The children were playing alone in the yard of the Reigle home at Mayfield when the shooting occurred, Wagner said. For the game of cowboys and indians, Howard had gone into the house for his father's gun, Wagner said.

Anne Arundel County Medical Examiner Dr. John M. Claffy issued a certificate of accidental death. Dr. Claffy said he officiated in June, 1947 when the 2-year-old victim was born.

Rape Complaint Of Alexandria Woman Probed

The FBI yesterday was investigating the complaint of a 32-year-old Alexandria woman who said she had been raped Saturday in an isolated section of Fort Belvoir by a soldier stationed there.

An officer at Fort Belvoir said no arrest had been made, but that a soldier in under investigation.

The woman, he said, related she had accompanied the serviceman from the Rod and Gun Club on the post to Dougue Creek Saturday afternoon, where the assault is said to have occurred. The soldier then drove her to a filling station where she called police, the officer said.

According to the officer, the woman reported she had been drinking off the post during the afternoon with another soldier who had taken her to the Rod and Gun Club.

Baby Dead Of RH Factor Reaction

The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Crowell of 2021 North 21st st., Arlington. The transfusion was given shortly after the baby was delivered by Caesarian section.

The mother's blood was RH negative. The unborn baby's blood contained the positive factor. Antibodies created in the mother's blood to combat the factor passed into the baby, with the eventual result being the destruction of the baby's red blood cells.

Friends of the Crowell family said doctors told them the mother's blood apparently had become sensitized to the RH positive factor after a transfusion several years ago. The blood used in the transfusion contained the RH positive factor.

Such sensitivity may also be developed as a result of previous pregnancies.

A Washington blood pathologist said that such a transfusion of RH positive blood could sensitize an RH negative mother. He said that the effect on future pregnancies would depend upon the individual woman, and upon the reaction of her blood at the time of the transfusion.

The pathologist pointed out that doctors now recognize the importance of the RH factor and test to determine it early in pregnancy and before giving transfusions.

Friends of the Crowell's said that the parents of the baby were aware of the complications which might result because of the mother's RH negative blood.

Crowell is an employe of the District Title company and his wife was formerly a nurse with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Infant, Victim of Rare Blood Disease, Improves

An unusual blood disease which threatened the life of a boy born last Tuesday at Arlington Hospital is apparently under control, it was reported yesterday.

Officials said the infant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Hawes of Burke, Va., is improving each day. His condition was described as good.

The child's malady—erythroblastosis—resulted from a conflict in the blood types of his parents, A and O. According to physicians, such conflicts in this combination of blood types are rare.

Transfusions have built up the boy's blood, of which they estimated about one third the normal amount of red corpuscles had been destroyed.

More of Soothing Weather Forecast For Washington

Washington's more comfortable weather, compliments of a cold air passage which moved in from Canada Saturday, will sooth this area for two more days at least, the Weather Bureau said last night.

Because the kindly cool air mass around Canada's Hudson Bay looks powerful enough to continue calling the turn on Washington weather, he doesn't believe there will be any 95-degree sweltering this week—but that's not official.

Yesterday's high temperature was 81 at 3:50 p. m. and business at the city's outdoor resorts—the parks and the Zoo—was way off.

Indian Urges Ghandi's Belief To Prevent War

Dr. J. M. Kumaratta, director of the Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Bombay, India, last night said Ghandi's philosophy of nonviolence, if adopted all over the world, would go "a long way toward promoting perpetual peace."

Speaking before the Columbia University alumni and International House members at International House, he said war could be prevented if people everywhere would fight the special interests that cause it.

Dr. Kumaratta, a member of the board of the Social Commission of the United Nations now meeting to study crime prevention and treatment, said a wedding of Americans' mechanical genius and the philosophic approach of the Indians could lead the world to unity.

Walter B. Avery, D. C. Builder, Dies Here After Brief Illness

Walter B. Avery, 61, Washington contractor, died yesterday in Doctors Hospital after a brief illness. He lived at 5120 Loughboro rd. nw.

A native son of the city he helped to build up, Mr. Avery went into the contracting business just after he graduated from old Business High School here. For many years, his office has been at 629 F st. nw.

Since leaving school he has been engaged in hundreds of large building enterprises here many of them involving Government buildings. At the time of his death, Mr. Avery had contracted for the construction of five new Montgomery County public schools.

His construction of the Wheeler, Inc., premises, auto dealers at 4800 Wisconsin ave. nw., won him the Washington Board of Trade award for the best building in its class in 1948.

Among the other noteworthy projects for which Mr. Avery had been the contractor are the Bergmann Laundry at 6th and G sts. nw., the Liberty Building Association structure at 1407 G st. nw., the Remount Station at Front Royal, Va., and military construction at Camp Springs, Md.

Mr. Avery was a member of the Almas Temple Shrine, St. David's Episcopal Church, the Washington Board of Trade and Ducks Unlimited an organization devoted to the preservation of wildlife.

He was on the board of directors of the Washington Permanent Builders Association and belonged to the Association of General Contractors of America.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Ximena Avery; a son, John B. Avery, Dover, Del., and three step children, Alvis R. Patterson, Arlington; Mrs. James C. Kyzer, Tuscaloosa, Ala., and James B. Patterson, Winston-Salem, N. C. Other survivors include a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Kettler, 128 Tennessee ave. ne., and two brothers, John H. Avery, 5733 Lambeth rd., Bethesda, and Clarence E. Avery, 2702 Minnesota ave. se.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Jury Opens Crabber Case Probe Today

Richmond, Va., Aug. 14 (AP).—In a closed room in Accomack County Courthouse Monday, a special grand jury is scheduled to begin its investigation of the bay shooting of a Marylander by a Virginia Fisheries Commission deputy.

Summonses have been prepared for seven men to serve on the special grand jury. Their duty will be to decide whether David A. Acree, 26, of Weirwood should be indicted on charges arising from the killing of Earl Lee Nelson, 50, former Crisfield (Md.) police chief.

The killing took place July 5 near the Virginia-Maryland line in the waters of Chesapeake Bay.

E. Almer Ames, jr., Accomack County Commonwealth's attorney, today said he had arranged for about 25 witnesses to be available to the jury.

Maryland and Virginia each believe the shooting of Nelson occurred in its side of the line. Engineers who have surveyed the State line at the death scene will be among those available for questioning by the grand jury.

Gov. William M. Tuck denied August 5 a Maryland request to shift the deputy to Maryland to face a murder charge the Free State has against him.

G-Girl Reports She Was Raped By Intruder

A 21-year-old Navy Department employe was reported raped early yesterday by an intruder who, she said, placed his hand over her mouth as she lay asleep and warned, "If you aren't quiet I'll kill you!"

The warning was accompanied by a blow from her assailant's fist, the young woman told police. The intruder carried her from her bedroom toward the kitchen after asking if there were a rear door, police said she reported.

The attacker was described as a light-skinned Negro about 30 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing about 120 pounds. The girl, also Negro, said he wore a light straw hat, light shirt and pants.

Mrs. Cagle Dies; Funeral Set Tuesday

Mrs. Eleanor M. Cagle, 42, wife of Lieut. Col. Carl J. Cagle, USMC, died Saturday of cancer at Bethesda Naval Hospital after a long illness.

Born in Fredericksburg, Va., Mrs. Cagle and Colonel Cagle were married there in 1926. They moved here in January, 1947, from the Marine Corps Quartermaster Depot, Barstow, Calif. Colonel Cagle is assigned to the office of the Secretary of Defense.

Besides her husband, of 5133 1st st. N., Arlington, she is survived by a son, Donald R. Cagle of the same address; her father, James F. Barker of Ladysmith, Va., and a brother, H. F. Barker, Patuxent, Md.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday from Elkton funeral home, Fredericksburg. Burial will follow at 11:30 a. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

D.C. Air Guard Starts Tactics In Delaware

New Castle, Del., Aug. 14.—Within 24 hours after it hit camp at the New Castle Air Force Base for its two-week training tour, the D. C. Air National Guard had planes in the air, flying simulated combat missions.

The 850 officers and men in the tour were unpacked at this base and at Dover Air Force Base by noon Saturday. At 8 a. m. this morning, 16 F-47 Thunderbolts from the 121st White House Fighter Squadron took to the air for formation tactics and camera gunnery.

Maj. Barnett Chaskin, Air Inspector of the 113th Fighter Group, last night said the fighters had hoped to start right off with live gunnery but low-hanging clouds forced the flights down to an altitude unsafe for live firing.

Monday morning, with weather permitting, 78 Thunderbolts will scramble for air-to-air, air-to-ground, rocket and dive bombing missions.

Major Chaskin said all units were in satisfactory operating condition. He said the guard's self-established mission of getting into the air with the least possible delay after arrival here had been accomplished.

Lieut. Collier, 5 Crewmen Rites Tuesday

Lieut. Neil R. Collier, jr., Air Force pilot, and five members of his crew who died with him in wartime action, will be reburied in Arlington National Cemetery at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

N. R. Collier

Lieut. Collier was killed when his troop carrier plane crashed, on a combat mission in a remote section of North Burma January 7, 1945. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Rex Collier, 4774 Old Dominion dr., Arlington, Va.

He was a pilot for the Second Troop Carrier Squadron of the Tenth Air Force operating in the India-Burma theater, and was decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross and had two Oak Leaf Clusters on his Air Medal. He attended Washington-Lee High School in Arlington and the Sullivan School here. He attended American University before enlisting as an aviation cadet.

He will be buried with crew members Second Lieut. Raymond C. Fry, jr., copilot of Piqua, Ohio; Corpl. Carl K. Fischer of South Beloit, Ill.; Corpl. Jimmie L. Stribling of Wirt, Okla.; T/5 Archie Kuhn of Hermiston, Oreg., and T/5 Paul B. Lowery of Akron, Ohio.

The bodies were recovered a year ago by an Army search team, and taken to Hawaii, where efforts to identify them individually proved unsuccessful.

In addition to his parents, Lieut. Collier is survived by two borthers, William Lee and Jack Wayne Collier.

Mrs. Ida Fenderson

Mrs. Ida Wesley Fenderson, 86, a resident of Washington for 66 years, died yesterday at the home of her son, Albert A. Fenderson, 6405 Meadow lane, Chevy Chase, Md.

A native of Cape May, N. J., Mrs. Fenderson was educated in New Jersey schools and came to Washington in 1883 as the bride of William Henry Fenderson, also of Cape May, who died in 1917.

She was an active member of the Chevy Chase Methodist Church and the Order of the Eastern Star.

Funeral services and interment will be held Wednesday at Cape May.

Besides her son, she is survived by two granddaughters, Miss Ann Fenderson of the Chevy Chase address and Mrs. John Marshall Rommel of this city.

Mrs. Stella Hardney

Mrs. Stella Lyons Hadney, 73, died at her Culpeper, Va., home Friday. She is survived by two sisters and a brother living in the Washington area, and a husband in Culpeper.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at Arlington Cemetery. Her survivors are her husband, George A. Hardney; two sisters, Mrs. J. Allen Campbell and Mrs. Gertrude Freeman, and R. J. Lyons, a brother.

Paul Goodman

London, Aug. 14 (AP).—Paul Goodman, 74, one of the leaders of the Zionist movement in Britain, died yesterday at a London hospital. Goodman wrote several books on Anglo-Jewish history. He was secretary of the Spanish and Portuguese Jews' congregation and honorary treasurer and chairman of the Zionist Federation of Great Britain and Ireland.

Woman's Week

Here's How to Attend All the Dance Parties Your Heart Desires

DON'T stampede, now. But here's something that's fun to do, costs practically nothing, is a service to others, and needs new recruits because so many of the former ones have gotten married and thereby become ineligible.

Please, girls, stop pushing. The Capital Girls Society, which is operated under the guidance of Mrs. Mary McCarty of the D. C. Recreation Department, provides dancing partners for servicemen in camps and hospitals in this area. To be eligible, you must be single and employed and must be at least 18 and not over 25.

Expeditions to the service clubs are made at night, Monday through Friday, so you needn't give up your precious Saturday nights to the project. Transportation is provided from a convenient point downtown. There is no cost to members except for nominal dues of 50 cents a month. Only just enough girls go on each trip to provide partners for the men, so there's no danger of being a wallflower.

Girls who are interested in being dancing partners—or in playing games with wounded servicemen confined to wheelchairs—should get in touch with Mrs. McCarty at Michigan 2567 weekdays before 5 p. m. She'll give you an interview and see if you're eligible. If you are, you can attend five parties a week, 52 weeks in the year, if your fortitude holds out.

There are occasional swimming parties in the summertime—several at Fort McNair, with a bathing beauty contest scheduled for August 25.

The rules are few and easy to observe. Chaperons are usually women of about 40 who are young in heart and have young daughters of their own. (Incidentally, if you're in that category, you might call Mrs. McCarty. She often needs chaperons, too.)

Girls rarely stop attending the dances of their own volition. But they often become ineligible by getting married—frequently to servicemen they've met at the dances. "When one of the girls says to me, 'Call me any time you need someone to go to Fort Belvoir' I know I'll soon lose her to the altar," says Mrs. McCarty.

IF YOU have talent beyond the simple social graces, you can have fun and be helpful at the same time through another activity of the D. C. Recreation Department, which provides entertainment for servicemen in another way. Singers, dancers, magicians, ventriloquists, musicians, novelty performers, masters of ceremony, comedians et al, are welcome. Pianists who are capable of accompanying the other performers are especially in demand. Get in touch with Tommy Thompson at Hobart 8134 for auditions, which are usually held immediately after one of the shows, giving the aspirant a chance to see how they are put on before he himself has to perform.

There is no age limit on this, talented tots of 2 may be members of "Volunteer Community Shows," and both married and single performers are welcome. Besides being given at Army camps, the shows go to hospitals like Children's and Gallinger, homes for old people, etc. Transportation is provided.

Since the audiences sometimes number 800, Mr. Thompson says it's a wonderful chance to get experience if you're planning to make entertaining your career. Miss Lois Agee, who ranked second in this year's Miss Washington contest, is one of the Community

You Can Wile Stubborn Child Into Taking That Daily Rest

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

AT ABOUT the time a child reaches the age of 2½ or 3 years, he begins to rebel at taking naps. In fact, at this generally "screaming" age, he rebels at everything and when he does not want to take a nap his behavior leaves no one in any doubt about the strength of his emotions.

This is a splendid time to institute the rest period. Then no pressure is expected upon the child to go to sleep. The very word is anathema to him. But, it should be explained, this is the time when everyone takes a rest, even his mother, if she can spare the time.

So into his room he goes. The sides of his crib are put down so that he has no excuse to scream and struggle to climb over them. The door of his room should be closed, or the gate on it fastened securely. He may have toys if he wishes. But he must stay in his room, quietly, for at least one hour and if he wants to play or talk or sing to himself, no one will object.

The important thing is that he should continue in this particular pattern of resting after the noonday meal. There will be dark and gloomy days when he will fall asleep. If he does he should be out of bed by three o'clock, for lengthy daytime naps at this age may prevent his wanting, or being able, to go to sleep at the regular hour at night.

And this nice, noonday rest period need not be abandoned even after the fifth year. In winter it is impossible because of school, but in summer, or holiday periods, the rest after lunch will work wonders on the child's disposition.

Children play vigorously all morning and come in to lunch exhausted. But would they admit it? The more tired they are the more wound up they seem to be.

If the child is thin and eats poorly there could be no more valuable aid to a better appetite than short rests before each meal and a good rest in the middle of the day. There is more profit for children in these enforced rests than meets the eye.

Fath to Get U. S. Fashion Award

Jacques Fath, Paris designer, will be among the four recipients of the twelfth annual Neiman-Marcus award for distinguished service in the field of fashion, it was announced this week.

The awards will be presented at the Neiman-Marcus Fall Fashion Exposition in Dallas, Tex., on September 5 and 6. Sharing honors with M. Fath will be Alice Cadolle of France, "for her artistry in the creation of the foundations of fashion"; David E. Evins, whose "original thinking has greatly influenced the shoe fashions of this century"; and Merry Hull, who has capped a successful designing career with her delightful "Merry Mites," little boy clothes that ingeniously grow.

Presentation of the awards will be made by Stanley Marcus, executive vice president of the specialty store which sponsors the event each year.

• The couture emphasizes generally a straighter, slimmer, shorter silhouette . . . achieving femininity and womanly charm without the fullness of past seasons.

• Pierre Balmain—shows a strong Far East trend . . . mandarin collars, sleeves . . . winged effect from shoulder to waist . . . double-back folds on dresses and coats . . . Chinese Fireworks colors.

• Rochas shows softly feminine loop treatment everywhere on dresses, suits, coats . . . on gloves and bags, too. Does wonderful things with reversible silks, with reverse for effect and contrast.

• John Desses highlights two silhouettes: "the Lasso" . . . fullness whipped into a spiral —and "the Kite" achieved by folding fabric, in many ways, like a paper kite. Flying stole appears on coats, jackets, dresses. Asymmetric decollete . . . colors—deep eggplant, greens, blues, browns.

'Sea-Horse' New Venture For Winifred Hanigan

By Genevieve Reynolds

THE old bread and butter routine job has palled. So you'd like to run a resort hotel for a bit of glamour and of course, cash. It can be done, provided, you can dig up enough family silver and recipes plus a sense of adventure.

That's the successful tale of at least two career women—Winifred Hanigan of this city and Frances Leigh Williams of Richmond, Va. Neither has had previous hotel experience.

Designer and fashion expert, Mrs. Hanigan now dresses Washington women in her own salon on Jefferson pl. during the fall and winter.

A former newspaper woman, author, Miss Williams also was historic research assistant to the editor of the Richmond News Leader, Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, working for him on the Pulitzer prize winning biography, Robert E. Lee. Now she writes feature articles for the Sunday Times Dispatch, works on a novel between arduous duties as president of the Woman's Club of Richmond.

Become Hotel Owners

In early June the Hanigan-Williams team was completing a summer cottage at Virginia Beach for a lazy vacation. Suddenly they decided to purchase a hotel. And on the 11th of the month they returned to begin renovation. Meantime, they issued invitations to the opening of the Sea Horse on 68th st. for July 1.

About the middle of June they persuaded a builder to drop all other work and put his whole force on redoing four buildings. For two and a half days a dump truck hauled away the discarded furniture. Then Hanigan and Williams set up a full-scale paint shop with two spray guns going full steam 15 hours daily. While scouting around the beach they discovered a vacationing mattress maker who agreed to renovate some 50 mattresses.

Twenty-four hours before opening, the blitz pace was stepped up as 50 workmen swarmed over the place. Painters urged plumbers to hurry so they could start to work on new bathrooms.

Mrs. Hanigan and Miss Williams mixed the paint themeselves to obtain special color schemes for each room. Carpenters were still hammering in the big modernized kitchen when the cooks started preparing the opening dinner. All came off on schedule.

Frances Williams dug down into the family chests and pulled out enough inherited silver to serve more than 100 people. Also she brought old silver trays, coffee urns and other articles.

Many of the recipes now in the cuisine at the Sea Horse were used here by Miss Williams' great-grandmother when she lived at Blair House and entertained as the wife of John Y. Mason, twice Secretary of the Navy and later Attorney General following a distinguished career on the bench and in Congress.

French recipes were garnered by the Masons during their years in Paris when Mr. Mason twice served as United States Minister. A specialty is a chafing dish which Miss Williams' father made for friends who gathered at his home on Sunday evenings.

Miss Williams, a post debutante and Junior Leaguer, runs the business details of the Sea Horse plus serving as hostess and food purchaser.

Mrs. Hanigan, who, prior to opening her own fashion salon, was fashion consultant for two of Washington's most exclusive stores, personally supervises the cooking and serving of meals.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

"Reginald," "Hector," "Chauncey," or "Percival"—yes, these are boys' names, but not ones popular with boys themselves. Nor do "Daisy," "Heliotrope," "Ivy," or "Amethyst" receive many favorable votes as names for girls.

It is important for parents when considering names for children to stop and ask a few questions of themselves. Certain practices as far as naming is concerned cause a good deal of distress to youngsters.

1. Is the name suitable in combination with the family name? Children have been called "Ivy" when the family name was "Green" or "Harry" when the family name was "Chinn." It may have been unconscious humor on the part of parents but it wasn't very funny to the youngsters.

2. Is the name a "geal" boy's name or a "real" girl's name? Some girls may not mind being named Johnnie or Bruce but few, if any, boys are happy about being called Shirley, Marian, or Francis.

3. What about the combination of initials? Stanley Arthur Porter sounds all right but it's not much fun to be called SAP, and the other kids will do it every time. Fortunately, my own initials, EGO, have never been too much of a burden but they might easily have been.

A little consideration, a forward look in choosing a name for your child can avoid a lot of emotional disturbance later.

Horseshow Opens September 4

LABOR DAY weekend to horse lovers in Virginia and the surrounding country means the annual Warrenton Horse Show. It's to be an especially big event this year for 1949 marks the fiftieth anniversary of this annual meet and the directors of the Warrenton Horse Show are planning an especially big celebration. As in years past all the big houses in Fauquier County will be thrown open to out-of-towners and gigantic picnics held under the trees will be the order of the day. Following the exhibitions—which actually occupy both Sunday and Monday of Labor Day weekend—there are always a series of dinner parties, and usually a grand ball held in honor of the owners of the winning horses.

Prominent members of the national and international "horse" set who are expected to help celebrate the horse show's anniversary are Mrs. William Haggin Perry of Cobham, Mrs. Ralph King of Gates Mills, Ohio, Martin Vogel of Warrenton, Mrs. Gregory McIntosh of Cleveland and Warrenton, Charles Stiner of Bloomsburg, Pa., and Col. Frederick Warburg of Middleburg.

Each event of the show will be heralded by the awarding of cups and ribbons by this season's crop of debutantes headed by Miss Mary Stuart Montague Price, a deb of a few seasons back. Last year's "Miss Washington"—Jody Miller—will open the show accompanied by the Marine Band.

A special event which never fails to attract attention is the "leading" classification which features children riders all under the age of 8. Some of these youngsters are as young as a year old and they parade about the grounds astride very small ponies.

Other events which are of especial interest are the Green Hunter Class, the Conformation Hunter Class, the Ladies' Hunter, the Junior Championship, and, of course, the famous John Barton Payne Memorial Cup which highlights the show as it is drawn in on a carriage supported by two beautiful white horses.

Margaret K. Moseley To oBe Fall Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Kunkel announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Kunkel Moseley, to George Scobie Vanderwende, son of Mrs. John Vanderwende, and the late Mr. Vanderwende. The wedding will take place in the early autumn.

Fairfax BPWC to Meet at Home of Mrs. O. J. LaBell

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Fairfax County will hold its August meeting at the home of Mrs. O. J. LaBell, near Fairfax, on Wednesday evening.

This is the one meeting of the year when serious subjects are taboo, and the evening is devoted exclusively to fun. A picnic supper will be served at 6:30 by the members of the ways and means committee and the hospitality committee, and the remainder of the evening will be spent in playing games, reading fortunes, etc.

Mrs. Evelyn Magarity, president, will preside.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Hammett of Chevy Chase announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Francis, to Richard Alan Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison Davis of Bethesda, Md.

The bride-elect attended Holy Cross Academy. Mr. Davis was a student at St. John's College and the University of Arizona. The wedding will take place on September 24, in the Blessed Sacrament Church.

Tenney—Wright

Mr. and Mrs. Harley V. Tenney of Buckhannon, W. Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, June, to John Hammett Wright, son of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Delette Wright of Washington and Westford, Mass. The wedding will take place on Saturday, August 27, at Buckhannon. The couple will reside in Washington.

Miss Tenney is a graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College and did graduate work at the University of Arizona. She is on the teaching staff of Prince Georges County, Md., school system.

Mr. Wright is a member of the District of Columbia Society, Sons of the American Revolution. He has just returned from a year's tour of duty with the Department of the Army in Italy. He served throughout the war with the Twentieth Air Force in the Pacific.

Moroz—Taylor

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Moroz of New York have announced the engagement of their daughter, Florence, to Dr. William J. Taylor of Columbus, Ohio. Both Miss Moroz and her fiance are former Washington residents. Miss Moroz was associated with the Office of Naval Research as a chemist, and Dr. Taylor was for five years with the Bureau of Standards as a chemical analyst. He left Washington in 1947 to join the staff of Ohio State University. Miss Moroz is also a member of the staff of Ohio State, engaged in chemical research.

Miss Moroz received her B. A. degree from Brooklyn College and worked on the atomic energy program Manhattan project, at Columbia University during the war. She later joined the scientific staff of the Office of Naval Research in Washington where she served until early this year.

Dr. Taylor is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. Robert Taylor of Granville, Ohio. He received his B. A. degree from Denison University and his Ph.D. from Ohio State.

Hints for Housewives

Use mild soap and medium hot water when washing hand-painted china.

Deck paint gives a fine finish to the basement floor. It comes in many colors and gives a most attractive appearance to this sometimes neglected room.

If you intend using the buttons on wash dresses, do not buy the kind that are glued to the shanks as they will come off in washing. Buy buttons that are sure to wash, no matter how strongly you may be tempted to buy some particularly pretty ones.

Woman's Week

shows' artists. "The experiences didn't do her any harm," Mr. Thompson points out.

WHY not have a party this afternoon? No, we don't mean a fancy social for your own friends. Why not ask some of your youngster's pals over for a few hours?

Augusts afternoon sun is really too hot for the strenuous outdoor playing the gang indulges in. And just about the only way to keep the kids inside for any length of time is to use that magical word—party.

Junior could invite four of his favorite playmates over at 2 o'clock. If you help out a little now and then, they can have the time of their lives without wearing themselves down to the point of exhaustion as they might do out of doors.

Blindman's buff probably ranks as No. 1 favorite indoor game. (But be sure to move your vases out of reach of swinging arms.)

Later you might introduce black magic. You don't have to worry about the furniture with this one.

Whoever is "it" looks around the room until he sees something black to use as his secret object. It might be Sammy's shoe, the middle knob of the radio or an ashtray. How the rest of the gang take turns guessing which object "it" has in mind. The one who guesses it first then takes his turn at being "it," and the game goes on until the kids get bored.

Marbles is great sport on the living room rug, especially "free for all chasies." (The youngsters will know all about that one.)

About half-way through the party you might serve a light snack. But don't bother too much with the refreshments. You ought to know by now the gang is only interested in quantity.

You could give each one a glass of fruit punch and a cup cake. Incidentally, the concentrated frozen fruit juices on the market are delicious in punch. One refreshing drink is made by combining the juice of two lemons and about ¾ cup of pineapple juice with a can of concentrated grape juice. Then add a quart, or maybe a little more, of water, chill and serve.

After another hour or so of games, the kids will go home perfectly refreshed and happy. They'll be able to eat a good-sized meal. Then after supper, when the sun goes down, they can ride bikes, roller skate, jump rope, etc., for a couple of hours without much danger of becoming overheated.

Maybe you can get together with some other mothers in your block and take turns playing hostess to the kids a few hours each afternoon until fall breezes shoo away that torrid August sun.

LOOKING for more meals that you can whip together in a hurry on hot evenings?

Here's one your family might enjoy one night this week. It stars an interesting version of that tasty meal-in-a-dish, the tuna casserole. You should be able to get it on the table in less than 45 minutes, using bakery rolls.

Tomato-Tuna Casserole
Cucumber and Mixed Greens Salad

TOMATO-TUNA CASSEROLE

6 or 6½ ounce can grated tuna fish
1½ cups peas (cooked or canned and drained)
1 can condensed cream of celery soup
½ cup milk
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup potato chips, crushed
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
6 tomato slices
Salt

Combine tuna fish, peas, soup, mustard, milk and potato chips. Pour into casserole. Sprinkle top with grated cheese, but save out a tablespoon or so. Place tomato slices on top in a circle. Dash with salt and remaining grated cheese. Bake in an oven 325 degrees for 25 minutes. This recipe makes four servings.

For Recipes With Sour Cream

We visited a farm a few days ago and were given a quart of whipping cream. By the time we had arrived home the cream turned. I have kept it in the refrigerator and it has become quite sour. Can I use it in baking? Do you have any recipes that you could print in which I could use this cream?
R. J. S.

I'm afraid this answer will not reach you in time to reclaim the cream you have on hand. However, for future reference, here is a recipe for sour cream cake using whipping cream. The cake should not be made with thinner cream.

SOUR CREAM CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
¾ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg beaten
1 cup sugar
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together dry ingredients, beat egg and sugar together until light; stir in sour cream and vanilla. Turn into prepared loaf pan (8 by 4 by 3 inches) and bake in moderate oven 350 degrees F. about 50 minutes.

SOUR CREAM RAISIN PIE

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup sour cream
1 cup chopped nuts, if desired
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup chopped raisins

Line 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Beat together eggs and sugar; gradually stir in sour cream. Mix together flour, salt and spices; stir into raisins and nuts. Add to egg-cream mixture and turn into pastry lined pan. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F) 10 minutes; then reduce the temperature to moderate (350 degrees F) and bake 30 minutes.

I left the electric percolator plugged until the coffee burned completely and the pot, too! Is there any simple way to clean the bottom of the percolator? It is quite badly burned (caked with black). I would also appreciate any general instructions you may have for cleaning an electric coffee pot.

I'm afraid this pot is really beyond a simple cleaning job. Start by filling the pot with hot water to which washing soda has been added and let soak for several hours. At the end of the soaking, empty and rub the inside with steel wool. If all of the deposit doesn't come off, repeat the soaking process and scour again. If the deposit is still not completely removed it will probably be necessary to have the interior of the pot buffed mechanically by a firm which restores metals. For such a firm, look for one which repairs metal objects under "Platers" in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

Since overheating may well have damaged or destroyed the heating element in the percolator, I suggest you have it tested by an electrical repair man to discover its condition before having the interior buffed.

An electric coffee pot—as well as other types of coffee pots—must be kept very clean to enable you to brew freshly flavorful coffee every time. After each use, wash in soap and water using a small brush to thoroughly clean the tube to the coffee ground basket and the spout. Also, hold the basket to the light to see if there are grounds stuck in the meshes. If so, remove them by brushing or using a toothpick. When washed and rinsed, leave the basket, etc., out of the pot and the pot open for complete airing. If the pot is in constant use, let it stand occasionally to sweeten it with a solution of 2 tablespoons of soda and enough water to fill it.

I am attempting to recondition an old cabinet made of white pine wood. This piece of furniture is over 100 years old and has been covered with several coats of paint and varnish stain. I have used a commercial paint and varnish remover in removing all the paint and am now down to the original wood. I've also sanded it. It is from this point on which I need advice. First of all there are some gouges and cracks that need filling and I would like to know what to use in filling them. After filling the cracks what should be used to give the surfaces a smooth finish before making any application of varnish or shellac? After sanding what should be applied to the surface to give it a hard finish? I would like to have the finished surface as near the same color as the natural wood.
G. M. A.

You can use stick shellac or plastic wood to fill the cracks. The stick shellac can be purchased at paint stores in most of the wood colors. The shellac is put into the crack with a heated tool such as a cheap screw driver. After it has completely dried, in the crack, smooth with fine sandpaper rubbing with the grain of the wood. If you use plastic wood, it will probably need staining after hardening in the crack to match the rest of the wood. Smooth it by evening with a file or razor blade and then sandpapering to finish the job.

Finishing with shellac will give a hard finish and will leave the piece very nearly the same color it now is. To apply shellac, when piece is sanded satin smooth, go over entire surface with a cloth dampened with turpentine to remove dust and any of the varnish remover which may remain. When thoroughly clean allow to dry. Apply a coat of white shellac thinned slightly with alcohol. Let dry thoroughly and sand with a fine grade sandpaper. For the most durable finish you may wish to apply three or four coats of shellac each one followed by sanding to give a lovely soft lustre to the piece.

TOBE SAYS—
Seal Smart Young Fur

Ten to one, your grandmother had a sealskin coat, and ten to one her granddaughter will have one this winter! For the little seal coat—Hudson (dyed muskrat to you) or genuine Alaska—is the smart young fur fashion of the year.

You can choose a hip-length dolman wrap jacket or a short double-breasted boxcoat or a more sophisticated cape.

You think seal is old because your grandmother wore it? Nonsense — remember she was young too when she bought her sealskin jacket years ago!

G-Girls Offered Five Day Course On Improvement

Government girls in the Departments of Defense and Agriculture are apt to surprise their bosses with new hairdos and manners this week.

These are the gals who will take advantage of the course in good job grooming being offered them by the Virginia Farrell Organization of Detroit. The five-day series of classes, opening tonight and continuing through Friday, will take place in the Department of Agriculture Auditorium. In order to accomodate everyone wishing to attend, two identical classes are scheduled at 5:30 and 7:30 p. m. each evening.

For the price of $3 ticket holders are entitled to attend two sessions, one on fashion scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, and one on grooming, with audience participation, slated for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Only employes of the Departments of Defense and Agriculture may attend the current series. But plans are being made to make the course available to women employed in all other Government departments.

Miss Collins To Head UCS Volunteer Unit

Miss Marjorie A. Collins has been appointed director of volunteer services for United Community Services, Frank R. Jelleff, UCS president, announced yesterday.

Miss Collins

Miss Collins has been with the District chapter of the American Red Cross for the past six years as assistant director of home service, and later as supervisor of intake.

UCS—the Washington unit of the Community Chest Federation—urgently needs volunteers, especially as typists or receptionists, or those with automobiles to drive children and handicapped people to clinics and hospitals, Miss Collins said as she took over direction of such services.

During the war, Miss Collins developed and headed a program of foreign inquiry and the prisoner of war department for the Red Cross. Earlier, she supervised volunteers for the Travelers Aid Society of Washington, having previously worked for the Ohio Humane Society and the Hamilton County (Ohio) Department of Public Welfare.

Miss Collins, who lives at 5912 14th st. nw., declared the UCS is "not interested in what some people think of as the typical volunteer worker, the woman who drops in to help for an hour between engagements. The men and women who register with us (as volunteers) really have a job to do."

Airline Plans To Cut Fares To 4c a Mile

National Airlines announced plans yesterday to file application September 1 to operate low-cost "air coach" service between New York, Washington, Jacksonville and Miami.

The new fare will be 4 cents a mile compared with the present 6.175 cents a mile, the company said. If approved, it said, the service will start October 1 with one North and one South flight daily.

The company said the fare would be the lowest in scheduled air travel history.

The Washington-Miami flight would cost, not including tax, $38.80 compared to the $62.30 present air fare or $48.38 for an upper Pullman berth; Washington-New York, $8 compared to the present $13.40 or $11.53 Pullman fare; Washington-Jacksonville, $25.60 compared to $40.40 or $33.35 Pullman.

The fares would be $1.26 more than the present rail coach fare between New York and Washington; $9.67 more between Washington and Miami; and $7.90 more between Washington and Jacksonville.

At first, the airlines said, the service would be operated with 48-passenger DC-4's. By January 1, however, the plans call for putting into operation 70-passenger DC-4 Buccaneers, increasing the schedules in accordance with public demand.

Appropriation Bill Log-Jam Under Fire

By the United Press

Representative Case (R., S. Dak.) yesterday threatened to resort to an unusual parliamentary maneuver to break the congressional log-jam of appropriation bills.

Case is irritated because, he said, President Truman "wrongly blamed" the Republicans for failure of Congress to have all money bills approved before the last fiscal year ended at midnight June 30.

He said he will test his plan on the 751-million-dollar War Department civil functions bill if the Senate and House Conference Committee fails to reach an agreement by the middle of the week.

Tis bill has been approved by the House and Senate and has been before a Senate-House Conference compromise committee since June 1, without an agreement being reached.

Under the rules, Case said, any member can make a motion to instruct the House conferees to reach an agreement immediately after a bill has been before a conference committee 20 days.

Case said he thought the House would approve such a motion because the civil functions bill carries hundreds of flood control and rivers and harbors projects. Almost every member of the House is interested in at least one of those projects, he said, and they want action.

He also believed he would get support of the House because the members want to adjourn.

If this move succeeds, Case said, he will use it on other bills as they bog down in conference. Only one other bill is in conference now—the $5,647,000,000 foreign aid bill.

Video Seen Aiding Nation's Commerce

By the United Press

Television has a big future in entertainment and advertising but both producers and advertisers still must learn how to use it advantageously, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

In the longrun "television will stimulate larger advertising budgets in which newspapers, magazines and outdoor media will benefit and in which radio, as it becomes a more specialized medium, will participate in proportion to its more restricted use," it said.

It also said that television will create new desires and needs and "together with all other advertising media, will help industry move a far greater volume of goods than ever before."

More advertising is needed to "stimulate consumer demands if industrial and commercial activities are to revert to their 1948 levels," the department said. But before television can play a big role toward this goal, it added, it must reach a large number of prospective consumers.

As of July, 75 television stations were operating commercially and 42 were under construction. Meantime, the Federal Communications Commission has 331 applications which are "frozen" until its final decision on whether to restrict television to "very high frequences" or allow it to expand to "ultra high frequency."

The department estimated that 1,860,000 television sets had been installed as of last month.

Bethesda Registration Wednesday, Thursday

Registration for students wishing to attend Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School will be held Wednesday and Thursday from 1 to 4 p. m. A second registration will be held September 8 and 9 at the same hours.

Students previously registered who wish to make changes in their schedules should report at the same times. The business office of the school will be closed from August 24 to August 31.

Lecture Scheduled On English Painting

Miss Elisabeth Puckett of the National Gallery of Art, Constitution ave. and 5th st. nw., will lecture on "English Painting" at 4 p. m. Sunday at the gallery.

An English painting, Constable's "A View of Salisbury Cathedral," will also be the picture-of-the-week, beginning today, and the subject of lectures by Miss Puckett at 12:30 and 2:30 p. m. daily and 2:30 and 6:30 p. m. Sunday.

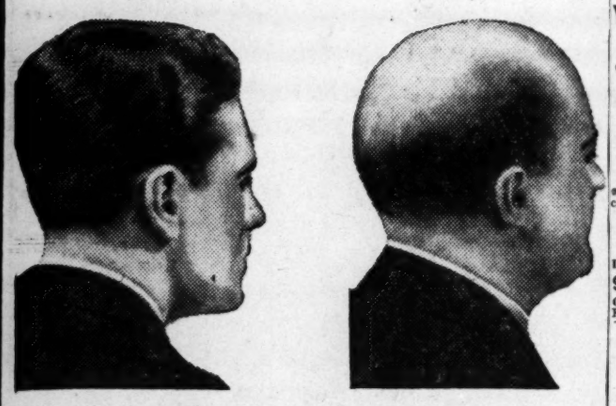
Is this Leading You to this?



IF dandruff scales (magnified above) are accumulating on your scalp and causing it to itch and burn, you are probably being warned that thinning hair may follow. Specialists are not agreed as to all of the causes of baldness, but they do urge the removal of dandruff scales as a sound prophylactic measure.

For more than 25 years The Thomas have been removing dandruff scales and soothing the itch which they may cause. Consult a Thomas expert today, in private, without charge, and let him show you exactly what Thomas treatment is and how it works. Start the treatment and see for yourself how pleasant it is, and how much healthier and cleaner your scalp feels—come in today!

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Patricia Hitchcock, daughter of the Alfred Hitchcocks, celebrated her twenty-first birthday recently. The director decided to present her with an unusual birthday-gift—a bust of her made by Jacob Epstein . . . After the first few sittings for the impressionistic sculptor, Pat Hitchcock described the studio to her father and said: "There's an unfinished bust of Ernest Bevin in one end of the studio" . . . After the next sitting she reported: "I was wrong. It's a finished bust of Ernest Bevin" . . . And after her own bust was finished, she reported: "Now I can't tell which is mine and which is Bevin's."

Horace Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, embraced Johnny Broderick in Toots Shor's one day, and told of the day Broderick cleaned out the gamblers at the Polo Grounds. The Mayor had assigned the detective to this job. The detective arrived at the ball-park 15 minutes after the game started, stood on a chair in a field-box, faced the section where the gamblers assembled, and roared: "Kim on down, alla yiz. En if yez don't I'll t'row yez off'n the roof." The gamblers recognized him. They all came down and left . . . Then George V. McLaughlin, of the Dodgers, asked Broderick to do the same at Ebbetts Field. Broderick refused. "Brooklyn? No," said the detective. "Brooklyn's like China— another country."

Dr. R. M. Atwater, Executive Secretary of the American Public Health Association, conferred with Dr. Andre F. Cournand, this year's winner of one of the Lasker Awards which are the scientific "Oscars." Dr. Cournand, who won the coveted prize for his work on heart disease, confessed that not until a few weeks later did he discover that he had been awarded the prize . . . Dr. Cournand had instructed the doorman of his apartment house to look over his mail each day, and if anything seemed unimportant—to throw it away. And the notification of his winning of a Lasker Award was thrown away.

Abe Burrow has written a Whittaker Chambers song, "She Thought I was Just a Country Bumpkin, Till I Showed Her The Microfilms In My Pumpkin" . . . The N. Y. Socialist Call and the London Tribune are using reciprocal ads. But because of Britain's dollar-crisis, the money for the British subscriptions to the N. Y. Call are being donated to the London Tribune.

Zero Mostel was at a gambling-joint in Las Vegas, and saw a man borrow $5 from Nick the Greek and promise to return it the next day. "No, pay it back a year from now," the fabulous gambler replied. The borrower insisted: "I'll pay the $5 tomorrow," and Nick repeated "No, pay it a year from now" . . . Mostel asked him why he preferred collecting the $5 debt in a year, instead of in a day. "Because," explained Nick, "I don't want him to establish credit."

Atlantic Group Names Bishop

Appointment of Robert J. Bishop as executive director of the Atlantic Union Committee was announced yesterday by former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, who is the committee president. Bishop is former vice president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, and a native of Orlando, Fla.

The Atlantic Union Committee is supporting a resolution in Congress asking President Truman to call a "federal convention" of Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg to discuss "free federal union" within the United Nations.

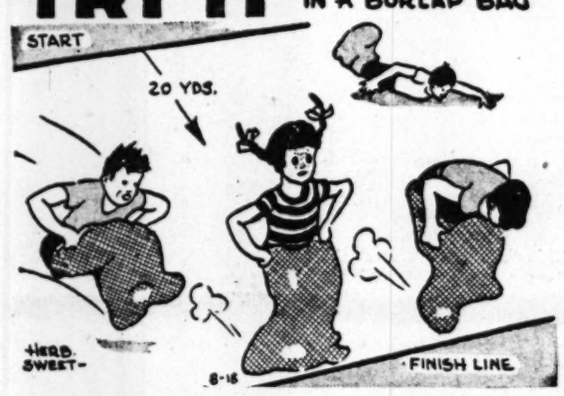
TRY IT RACE UP AND DOWN IN A BURLAP BAG



Sack races have probably been held ever since bags were first made, for some wide-a-wake youngster certainly would crawl into one and discover how much fun it is to try and walk along in one. For many years we know that this fun has been turned into games and has been a favorite pastime at community gatherings.

Races may be held in the form of relays, or if enough sacks are available a grand free-for-all may be held. When people of all ages are involved, it is best to hold separate races for different age groups and for boys and girls.

To hold a race, establish a starting line and a finish line, adjusting the distance to suit the age. Lay a bag down in front of each player entering the race, and at the word go he puts his feet into the bag, holds it around his hips, and hops away. The winner must have a bag full of tricks.

Slander

Q. Black and White were professional men who had been officers in the same company during the war. After the war they resumed practice in the same small city. One day in the locker room at the golf club, under the influence of liquor, they got to quarreling, and White said to Black, within hearing of several other men: "Why, when we were stationed in Africa you kept a harem! You spent money you should have sent to your wife for food for your harem!" Black sues White for slander, and White defends that it is lawful to have a harem in that part of Africa where they were stationed, and that therefore what he said is not slanderous. Is the defense good?

A. One ground of a suit for slander is the saying of another that he has commited a crime involving moral turpitude. Here

White has accused Black of adultery, according to the law of the place where the words were spoken. It doesn't matter what is the law of the place where the conduct occurred. White's defense therefore is not good . . . F. L. D.

BARNABY

Lucky your Fairy Godfather overheard those crooks plotting to steal our pearls. Now we can be ready for them—
So what do we do when they get here, huh, O'Malley?
Can't you just wave your magic wand and make them disappear?
—Er, I thought of that, m'boy. But how would it look on their police records? The cops can't just write "Vanished. Pout!"
Soitainly would look screwey—
We'll proceed through the regular channels. The FBI will help. I've given J. Edgar some good tips recently. And I'll ord... a detachment of Marines to stand by off shore—
You mount guard, Gus, while I run down to the drugstore and phone—
Oh, dear.
I'll come along. I need toot paste.
It's late. I better go home.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

What a Pity They Didn't Have Apple Pie!

Fritz Balzer of 8401 Dixon ave., Silver Spring, Md., eased himself onto a counter stool at the Silver Spring Peoples Drug Store and studied the menu.

While he was thus occupied, Fritz heard the fellow on the next stool give his order. "A piece of apple pie and a cup of coffee," he said.

"Sorry," replied the fellow behind the counter. "No apple pie today."

"No apple? What do you have?"

"Pumpkin, peach, custard, cherry, berry and apple."

"Hmmm. Well, okay—make it apple."

"One coffee and one apple pie, coming up."

TEXAN LOOKS US OVER

Edward Redmond says that, having moved here from Texas, he's having a bit of difficulty in understanding our peculiar signs.

On the buses and streetcars, for example, first he sees "Mount Pleasant," then "Seat Pleasant"—and then "U-2."

Our traffic control signs are also somewhat confusing, he says.

"When the sign says 'Walk,' I start across the street. But halfway across, it says 'Don't Walk,'

"What you need is a third sign which would come on in between the 'Walk' and 'Don't Walk' and say: 'Run Like Hell'."

TOP SECRET DIPLOMATIC STUFF

The fellow with the accent was having a little trouble making himself understood, but the cashier finally got the drift. Beckoning a bus boy, she said:

"Johnny, take this back to the boss and tell him this fellow says he doesn't have to pay sales tax because he has this card which gives him diplomatic immunity."

Johnny dutifully delivered the message to the boss, who used to be a no-nonsense saloon keeper in the old days, and has since acquired far more wealth than polish.

"What'sa matter," growled the boss, "is the crumb tryin' to get outta payin' the penny tax on his drink?"

"He says this card gives him diplomatic immunity," repeated Johnny.

"Look, if he don't wanna pay the tax, throw the bum out. I don't want no deadbeats in here."

So the fellow with the accent paid the tax, and walked out talking to himself.

At the District Building, you'll get precious little information on the subject. One official says yes, they've issued identification cards to diplomats for tax exemption purposes; another says no, we can't say that, but ask the State Department; and the State Department is very careful about giving out this type of information.

After all, I may be a courier for the underground. How do they know?

However, I eventually wound up with Acting Protocol Chief Spruks who quickly verified that diplomats are getting cards which exempt them from all excise taxes.

"Some merchants," he added, "may not recognize the cards, but they're entirely valid nevertheless."

ORIGIN OF THE SPECIES

A friend in the Navy Department assures me that "5-percenters" are not a brand new breed in Washington.

My friend asks that he remain anonymous ("because we have a little boy, and would like him to go on eating up his daddy's Navy salary checks"). Then he adds:

"There was, and still is, a certain commander in the Navy who was, and still is, a stupid, opinionated, pompous old boy who boasted of being very hep. He used to say that he knew 95 per cent of what was going on in his division.

"The commander had an assistant who, if possible, was even more stupid and opinionated than his boss. Naturally, we concluded that if the commander knew 95 per cent of what was going on, his assistant must know the other 5 per cent.

"So he became known to one and all as 'The Old 5 Per-Center,' and that was a long time before the term came to have its present meaning."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Iran Slams Down 'Iron Curtain'

By Robert S. Allen

(Ed. Note—While Drew Pearson is on brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas found himself in a perplexing crossfire during his recent mountain-climbing trip in the hinterlands of Iran (ancient Persia).

Douglas

On one hand, he was the target of Soviet blasts as a "big devil spy," and on the other of Iranian censorship and iron-handed military control.

The Russian fulminations were publicized. But the Iron Curtain that Iran slammed down on Douglas has come to light only since his return to the U. S.

Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlevi, who comes to the U. S. in November, personally ordered the blackout on Douglas.

This is the untold story:

From American officials in Iran, Douglas learned that desperate famine conditions prevail in Azerbaijan, northwest province that adjoins Russia. A combination of extreme winter and severe spring drought had destroyed crops and most of the herds of the area. Hundreds have died of hunger. To the outrage of American authorities, the Iranian government has done very little to ameliorate the tragic situation.

U. S. officials are profoundly concerned about the explosive Azerbaijan situation because it plays squarely into Communist hands. Even under normal conditions, the historic area is one of the critical tinderboxes of the world. Azerbaijan was occupied for several years by the Red army, which built a number of roads and made strenuous efforts to woo the tribesmen. Large Red combat patrols still make occasional penetrations. Russian agents abound, and are making the most of the Iranian government's incompetence, neglect and corruption.

Douglas's itinerary included a visit to Tabriz, capital of Azerbaijan. The day before he was to fly there, he had lunch with the Shah. The young ruler talked a glowing line of reform and national development. But he froze up when Douglas mentioned casually his impending trip to Tabriz.

Two hours later, the U. S. embassy was officially notified that the Shah had barred Douglas from flying to Azerbaijan.

Request for an explanation for this extraordinary action brought the reply, "Evil reports are emanating from there. The reports are unfavorable to the Shah and the government."

Note: Although receiving huge oil royalties, the Iranian government tried to shake down the U. S. for 200,000 bushels of free grain for famine relief.

Miracle

There is something new under the sun!

John L. Lewis and Interior Secretary Julius Krug are in harmonious agreement on the bill for more stringent mine-safety regulations and enforcement.

The measure was introduced by Senator Matt Neely (D., W. Va.). In the past, Lewis has been a sulphurous critic of Krug and James Boyd, director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines. They aided Neely in drafting the bill and, because of this, there was uncertainty as to Lewis' attitude. But he has given his blessing. Despite this unity, however, the legislation has made little headway.

Espionage Trial Changes

President Truman is considering recommending important changes in the trial procedure of espionage cases, aimed at preventing mistrials and the introduction of evidence endangering security, such as the FBI files made public in the Judith Coplon trial.

In a letter to freshman Congressman Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts, who recommended the changes, Truman has strongly indicated the use of the FBI Coplon evidence was inadvisable, though he doesn't refer specifically to that trial.

Number 28 (and last) in a Series . . . Hecht Co. Personalities

SEE NEXT MONDAY'S POST FOR THE FIRST OF A NEW SERIES BY THE HECHT CO.

RICHARD S. MEYER, Advertising Manager, is a great rarity, a native Washingtonian. His entire advertising career has been in the Nation's Capital, beginning 18 years ago at The Hecht Co. Besides being thoroughly immersed in advertising, Mr. Meyer describes himself as a born "tinkerer" and boasts of a home full of home-made electronic gadgets designed to simplify his family's existence. Mr. Meyer lives with his charming wife in a Chevy Chase home furnished with his favorite French Provincial. Says managing two bustling young sons requires more skill than making ad-deadlines every day.

Deadline for Action . . .

SAYS RICHARD S. MEYER, THE HECHT CO.'S ADVERTISING MANAGER

"Lights! Action! Camera! Shoot the picture! What's the headline? Where's the copy? Is the layout set? Is the price O. K.? Then, let's go!" . . . Thus, another Hecht Co. advertisement goes to press. It may be a sale of 10,000 towels. Or a big men's clothing promotion. Or a fashion presentation. Whatever the event, the picture above gives you a peek preview of the ad preparation. It's an atmosphere of hustle and hub-bub, tenseness and pressure for, like a big newspaper, the Advertising Department of a big store functions against constant deadlines. "At The Hecht Co.," explains Richard Meyer, our Advertising Manager, "it requires the time and talents of 50 experts to meet these deadlines, and to keep our ads as chock-full of scoops as the front-page of your favorite newspaper. In fact, our big staff actually operates like a metropolitan daily, from headlines to last editions."

Our copywriters are reporters, ferreting out the facts you want to know. Is the chair solid mahogany? Will the blouse wash? Is the suit pure wool? Their typewriters rattle furiously as they pack their copy with this information. Our layout-artists, camera men and illustrators are skilled professionals, primed in newspaper technique. They know you want to see the Dior pockets on that dress, the thousands of tufts on that chenille spread.

Headlines, layout, art-work, copy . . . at last the ad is ready for final release. But it does not stop there! Our Comparison Department shops every item, verifies the value. Our Display Department highlights the advertised item in attractive arrangements on the selling floor. Our Sales Staff is advised of the ad, trained to acquaint you with the story of the advertised item. Now, already the hue and cry of "lights, action, camera!" has started again. Again typewriters hammer, artists' pencils fly, and our Photo Studio blazes with flash-bulbs. Another deadline has loomed up! "But," admits Mr. Meyer, "our 50 ladies-and-gentlemen of the press seem to take it in their stride. They say it makes The Hecht Co. a great place to work . . . a great place to shop."
